Scavenger Pact With Pacifica

6-Month Dumpsite Reprieve

The City Council of Daly City Monday gave the Coastside Scavenger Co. of Pacifica a six-month lease on use of its Mussel Rock garbage dump — at an increased dumping rate.

Al Sereni, president of the Daly City Scavenger Co. said he had hammered out an agreement with officials of the coastside garbage company which would increase the current dumping charge of $7.50 per ton to $10 per ton, effective immediately.

Pacifica dumps some 65 tons of garbage daily at the Mussel Rock site.

Gross income from the new transaction could amount to some $125,000 annually for the Daly City Scavenger Co., Sereni said.

Daly City's share of the dumping charge is 25 per cent.

The city also skims 25 per cent from gross receipts of the company, it was understood.

Pacifica has used the Mussel Rock site under agreement with Daly City since May 1970.

Daly City had earlier notified Pacifica the agreement would be terminated on July 1 because of the limited lifespan at the site.

But engineering studies being conducted at Mussel Rock indicate the dump might be used for up to an additional 30 years, Sereni said.

City Manager David Rowe told the council Monday that results of the study would be available in November.

This would allow the council to again review the Pacifica-Daly City dumping agreement, Rowe said.

In other action Monday, the council appointed Edward Eastman, Steven Courter and Joe Rinaldi to the Daly City General Plan Committee.

All are active in civic matters in the city, it was explained.

Eastman had been previously appointed to the County Draft Board and had participated in the revision of the General Plan some eight years ago.

Colma City Clerk Retiring

Blanche Lagomarsino: 'Not Many Changes' In 21 Years in Post

Retiring Colma Town Clerk Blanche Lagomarsino plans to "just take it real easy" after she cleans out her desk at city hall next week.

Her desk contains some 21 years of memories — of her job, the city, and her late husband, Albert "Dini" Lagomarsino.

Dini was the town's police chief for many years.

Both Blanche and Dini were well-known faces around town hall and at civic and official functions around the Bay Area for some three decades.

Blanche was appointed city clerk in the quiet cemetery town back in 1956, succeeding the late Ed Weisenberg.

She was overwhelmingly re-elected to the post in 1958, 1962, 1966, 1970 and 1974.

Now, with two years left to serve on her current term, she is turning over responsibility of the city to Frances Liston.

Ms. Liston will be sworn in on July 19 at a special meeting of the City Council.

Except for the dramatic increase in the city's commercial district ("the biggest change I've seen"), things haven't changed all that much in Colma, Mrs. Lagomarsino said.

The "living" population of Colma in 1956 was 500.

Today, it is 537.

But the city's revenues certainly have increased, she said.

In 1956, Colma depended much on the burials conducted there.

Until a couple of years ago, the city received $1.50 per burial. This amounted to perhaps $15,000 per year, plus a small income from license fees.

Twenty years later, the sprawling and still growing Serra Center brings in more than half a million dollars in sales tax revenues to Colma annually — enough to hire a fulltime, around-the-clock police force.

A few local trips. Perhaps a cruise. Vacations to places she's always wanted to see. These are all on Blanche Lagomarsino's list of things to do starting next week.

"But mostly, I just think I'll relax for awhile. Just sit around and do nothing," she said.

4 Held By D.C. Police

Four persons, including two juveniles, were arrested Sunday night as they walked down a Daly City street popping off firecrackers, police reported today.

But they were not arrested for allegedly exploding the illegal firecrackers.

Police charged all four with burglary. One of the men also was charged with resisting arrest and assault on a police officer.

About 11 p.m. Sunday, neighbors in the Brunswick-Irvington Street area of the city heard the firecrackers and said they looked out to see four persons breaking into a car on Brunswick Street and allegedly stealing a CB radio.

Police were called and apprehended the four a short distance away.

Backtracking, police reported they discovered an attempt had been made to break into the Guadalupe Health Center's Annex Office at 478 Irvington St.

Charged with burglary was John Cordova, 18, of 270 Acton St., Eric Sanchez, 18, of 423 Bellevue St., and two unidentified juveniles.

Sanchez also was charged with assault on a police officer.

Polonsky 'Appalled' At Northgate Report

By FRANK LaPIERRE
Staff Writer

City Atty. Albert Polonsky told the Daly City Council Monday that he was "appalled" at a State Public Utilities Commission staff report recommending approval of a five-cent rate increase for Northgate Transit Co.

Councilman William Schumacher shook his head when informed of the PUC report.

"I simply cannot understand their (the staff) action," he said.

Northgate has received much criticism from both city officials and citizens in recent months.

At the very height of this criticism, and after Northgate personnel had entered into discussion on the possible sale of the company to the San Mateo County Transit District (SamTrans), the PUC began hearings on the proposed rate increase.

If granted, the rate increase would have a bearing on the "buy out" value of Northgate, city officials say.

Northgate contends "astronomical" increases in insurance rates — from $22,244 in 1972 to $63,717 in 1976 — coupled with skyrocketing operating costs, justify the rate hike.

During the PUC hearings it was brought out in testimony that some driver-owners of Northgate buses allegedly had skimmed perhaps $200,000 from fares collected in recent months.

A brief filed with the PUC by its staff failed to bring this testimony out.

Instead, it said "The applicant provides the only carrier service in the area it serves, so that it appears that it would be in the public interest if the fare increase is granted, particularly in view of the probability that the applicant's equipment and operations will be acquired in the near future by SamTrans."

SamTrans General Manager John Mauro was expected to take the matter before the transit district Board of Directors tonight.

The matter will be presented to the board in a closed-door meeting and Mauro refused to disclose what he is prepared to offer Northgate for the outright purchase of the company.

For the past month, consultants under contract with the district had conducted an appraisal survey of Northgate.

The three page PUC staff report, prepared and signed by Elmer J. Sjostrom, staff counsel, concluded:

"In view of the relatively small fare increase requested, the public need for the passenger bus service, and the fact that the service probably will be taken over by the SamTrans in the near future, it is submitted that the fare increase requested in the application should be granted."

DC Bicentennial Junket

CC Won't Comment

Officially no one in the Daly City Chamber of Commerce wants to comment on that bicentennial junket to the East Coast won by a supermarket employe who decided not to take the trip.

Instead, winner Calvin Quan, an employe of the El Rancho Market on Geneva Avenue in Daly City "sold" his winnings worth $2,000 to Camille Silva-Netto, an employe of the North San Mateo County Sanitation District for $1,500.

Miss Silva-Netto is the adopted daughter of Bert Hope, an official of the Greater Daly City Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the contest.

Last week, the chamber's Board of Directors refused to sanction the sale and transfer of the ticket from Quan to Miss Silva-Netto. They turned the entire matter over to chamber counsel Paul Hupf for advice.

This newspaper learned Tuesday that Miss Silva-Netto would return the winning ticket to Quan, providing Quan turned back the full $1,500.

If Quan after buying back the ticket still opts not to take the journey (four TWA jet tickets, plus $1,000 cash), the chamber will inform him the full value of the package is $2,600 and he is free to sell the package at whatever price he wants — as long as it does not include a member of the chamber, their relatives or a member of the Board of Directors.

Nothing in the contest rules forbids such a sale, it was pointed out.

However, Hupf earlier noted that the publicity from an official of the chamber purchasing the ticket at a discounted rate was not good for the organization's public image.

Ammonia: 2-Dozen Evacuated

An ammonia leak at a South San Francisco refrigeration plant forced evacuation of some two dozen employes of companies in the immediate area about 9:30 a.m. Monday.

Firemen wearing special gas masks and firefighting clothing advanced through a heavy cloud of highly toxic and caustic gas to turn off a broken valve on a large storage tank at the Hirschberg Frelezer Dry Co. at 179 Starlite Road.

Water spray was used to dissipate the cloud during the attempt to shut off the leaking gas.

A valve on a 30- by four-foot tank broke, sending out a large vapor cloud, firemen said.

Train Kills D.C. Man

A young Daly City man threw himself underneath a Southern Pacific commuter train shortly after it left the San Bruno railroad station about 2 p.m. Monday.

Daniel Dezman, 22, of 221 First Ave., Daly City, was fatally injured when the northbound train rolled over him, police said.

A Dealer Spells Out the Woes Of Self-Service Gas Stations

By RICK SULLIVAN

It's only natural that Vic Sossikian should work as a gasoline service station dealer. He was born and spent the greatest portion of his life in Iraq, one of the largest oil-producing countries in the world.

But what is somewhat ironic is that the company he works for gets much of its oil from his native land, yet is engaged in government-sanctioned business practices that he says are driving down his profit margin.

Sossikian says he is caught in the financial vise grip of unfair competition and the proliferation of self-service gasoline stations, the results of which could spell bankruptcy for the Armenian dealer and others like him.

(Dornias Photo)

PROFITS DRIVEN DOWN

Gas dealer Vic Sossikian, who owns stations in San Bruno and Pacifica, says he is caught in vise-grip of self-service stations.

THE 36-YEAR-OLD Sossikian operates two Shell dealerships, one in San Bruno, the other in Pacifica. The opening of three self service stations in San Bruno and several others on the coastside have cut into the meat of his revenues; over the past year he has lost money at both stations.

"Self-service stations are forcing dealers out of business," says Sossikian. "There's no way we can compete with the price of gas. Our only salvation is the back shop (repair work)."

More than a decade ago religious discrimination forced the Armenian to leave Iraq. He immigrated to England, then later to Canada working as a mechanic. He came to the United States five years ago ("because I've always dreamed of living in a free country") and went to work in the service department of a San Francisco Volkswagen dealership.

"I spent two years there and during that time I noticed what kind of mechaical work was being done at various service stations," explains Sossikian. "I knew I could do a better job than most, so I applied for a Shell dealership."

Shell conducted a scrupulous background investigation of the Armenian and when that cleared as if he could come up with "front money" to pay for the gasoline in the tanks and the auto assessory products on hand at a small station in Pacifica.

Sossikian produced the needed cash, relative to a downpayment, and was given the station.

IN HIS AGREEMENT with Shell, it was explained to him, as it is to all major oil company dealers, that he would not be allowed to sell his business at any time. Any new dealer at the station would have to be appointed by the company.

After several years at the station, Shell moved Sossikian to a larger station in the same city. In 1972 the company gave him an additional station" at one of the best locations in the Bay Area," the corner of El Camino Real and San Bruno Avenue.

From mid 1972 to mid 1975, Sossikian's San Bruno station thrived. He pumped from 150,000 to 160,000 gallons of gasoline a month and employed 12 men just to put gas in the tanks: six

Temporary Plans To Stop Stench

Prodded by the state Water Quality Control Board (WQCB), the Pacifica City Council finally has decided to spend $7,000 to alleviate an odor problem in the residential area surrounding the city's sewage treatment plant.

However, it is not yet certain if the action will prompt the WQCB to drop its charges that the city's plant is violating state and federal laws.

The city received a public notice last week from the state regional WQC board officials that the 4-year-old Pacifica plant will be the subject of a public hearing on Aug. 17.

If the board agrees with its staff that Pacifica's plant is having serious problems concerning odor and discharge, the city could be slapped with a cease-and-desist order prohibiting additional sewer hook-ups until problems are resolved.

Residents of the city's Sharp Park neighborhood, where the plant is located, have been complaining for more than a year that the stench from the facility is intolerable — especially on windy days.

Many pleas have been made by residents to the City Council to solve the problem.

The council voted unanimously Monday to let the WQCB staff know it is willing to spend $7,000 for temporary odor control equipment.

The council indicated slight reluctance to spend the money because the city is nearly ready to begin con-

Juveniles Arrested Inside Home

Two juveniles were arrested by police inside the home of Daly City nurseryman Augie Conci after they allegedly broke into the house in the Westlake Estates section of the city about 12:45 p.m. Monday.

Conci called police when he unexpectedly returned home for lunch shortly after noon and heard noises on the second floor of the home.

One teenager was wearing socks on his hands in an apparent effort to thwart fingerprint detection, police said.

The second juvenile had a glass cutter in his possession, presumably used to break into homes without making a lot of noise, according to police Lt. Tom Culley.

Both juveniles are from Daly City and are 14 years old.

They were sent to Hillcrest Youth Guidance Center, Culley said.

Kent Urged to Delay Outdoor Site Purchase

By BOB HEMINGWAY

County School Superintendent Dr. J. Russell Kent is being urged by opponents of the proposed $4.1 million outdoor education facility near Loma Mar to hold up on purchase of the 274-acre site until a trial can be held on the legal ramifications involved.

Earl Crockett, chairman of the South Coast Committee which has challenged the purchase in court, asserted today that a memorandum decision by Superior Court Judge Melvin E. Cohn last week ruling that Kent has the legal authority to enter into a purchase contract "doesn't mean he can take over everything which has been done by the Board of Education to date."

Judge Cohn's decision of last week followed by six weeks his ruling that the Board of Education lacked jurisdiction to purchase the proposed site.

Crockett said there is no denying that Kent has the authority to buy real property. However, the chairman contended there are two major conditions which must be met:

• The superintendent has the powers of a school district in outdoor education when he is operating under contract with one or more school districts.

• Money for purchases has to come from the school districts.

"There are two conditions we feel have not been met and are still subject to determination by the court," Crockett said.

Crockett acknowledged that Kent, under conditions of Judge Cohn's memorandum decision, is free to purchase the property 10 days following the date of the decision — July 6.

"Prudent people with good legal counsel would wait until the questions are decided," Crockett said.

Although he would not come out and say so directly, Crockett hinted at the possibility of a recall attempt if Kent proceeds with the purchase.

"I suggest that should Dr. Kent go ahead and buy in the face of opposition and points of law, the taxpayers would have to decide whether he is carrying out his office in the best interests of the people," Crockett stated.

"To vote someone into office is a mandate for them to serve, but not a license for them to do as they damn well please," he said.

Some other contentions voiced by Crockett are that Kent, as county schools superintendent, is not entitled to the exemption from the county zoning ordinance allowed school districts building classrooms, and that he has failed to present a proposal to the county Planning Department setting forth the proposed use of the land intended for purchase, as required by law.

Furthermore, Kent hasn't completed an environmental impact report nor secured the approval of the Regional Water Quality Control Board, both of which were done by the Board of Education prior to Judge Cohn's earlier ruling, Crockett said.

He contends Kent will have to do so as the new purchaser of the proposed outdoor education site.

"My concern is that all of these things have yet to be heard in trial and are subject to appeal by either side," Crockett said.

"If Dr. Kent, his legal counsel (the District Attorney's Office) and the Board of Education are prudent, they will at least wait until the law is decided on these questions," he added.

"If Dr. Kent goes ahead after all these questions, the public has to seriously consider the man's ability to serve," Crockett asserted.

Contending that the Board of Education has been "unresponsive" to concerns expressed by citizens and the county grand jury concerning purchase of the outdoor education site, Crockett said three members of the board are up for re-election next year.

J. Paul Bradley, Granville DeMerritt and Elio A. Fontana — "and there will be candidates for all three seats."

Kent currently is on vacation and was not available for comment concerning Crockett's assertions.

struction of a $5 million secondary treatment plant which will include $150,000 in permanent odor control equipment.

The council learned from Community Development Director Les Clark that the facility won't be completed for two years and in the meantime, the smell could continue to plague the neighborhood.

That information, Mayor Janice Fulford said, was a factor in the council's approving funding for the temporary equipment.

City Manager Don Weidner expressed dismay at the WQCB notice to the city.

He told the council that the Pacifica staff had asked WQCB several months ago for justification to spend the $7,000. The staff did not expect the council to approve spending $7,000 unless the need was certain.

Weidner contends that the notice from WQCB is in response to the city's request although it is an "overreaction" and "something short of a declaration of World War III."

In urging the council to appropriate the $7,000, Weidner cited what he called the city's error in not treating the odor problem sooner for the sake of Sharp Park residents.

"The city was not aggressive enough in responding to odor complaints," Weidner said. "We owe the community an apology."

Weidner said other complaints cited in the notice — including alleged illegal discharge of solids and chlorine — will be rectified in the secondary treatment plant.

However, the city must wait to find out if WQCB will wait two years for that problem to be resolved or if it will want more expedient action.

City Atty. Gloria Scheid said she discussed the alleged violation Monday with the WQCB attorney.

"It appears from all points of view the problem lies with the fact that we have not moved quickly enough or definitively enough with regard to odor control," she said. There is some indication, she said, that the WQCB will drop all charges against the city if the odor problem is resolved.

One councilman, Stan Farber, issued his vote protesting the manner in which WQCB staff has treated Pacifica.

Farber at first said the city should attend the hearing and if the board slaps the city with a cease-and-desist order, the city should challenge that in court seeking an injunction.

He said he objects to other agencies demanding that cities such as Pacifica spend their money on specified items.

"I agree with the city manager that we owe it to the community to stop the odor," he said. "But I can't see losing $7,000 in cash without some type of fight."

Farber also said he wants it made quite clear that the city is not guaranteeing that either the $7,000 temporary solution or the $150,000 permanent facility will eliminate odor.

"We better start saying that and we better say it loud and clear," Farber said.

Councilman Mark Savage said he felt that if the odor problem had occurred in the Park Pacifica neighborhood — the city's higher-priced housing area — the money would have been spent sooner.

"I agree we are giving Sharp Park the short shirt," he said.

Several council members said they believed the odor problem has lessened in recent months as city staff has been working on it.

Sharp Park Improvement Council Director Stewart Cross said he believes the odor has decreased but a problem still exists, particularly for those persons who live directly across the street from the plant.

Councilman Sidney Lorvan said thousands of Sharp Park residents have been putting up with the stench for years and the city ought to spend $7,000 to provide some relief. He made the motion for the expenditure, noting he did so with little joy.

WQCB engineer Harold Singer said last Friday that all the charges in the notice — not just the odor nuisance — are serious and have been thoroughly investigated.

A cease-and-desist order would prohibit Pacifica from granting building permits until problems are resolved.

The most severe action could come from the attorney general who could fine the city $10,000 a day.

City Yard Opposition Continues

By JANET PARKER

There was some evidence Monday night that the Pacifica City Council might yet consider locations other than Sharp Park School for its new corporation yard.

Sharp Park neighborhood residents have been telling the city for months that their neighborhood is no place for the city's corporation yard, which will house all city vehicles and provide maintenance facilities.

City Manager Don Weidner asked the council Monday to appropriate $25,000 so architectural plans for the yard could be drawn.

He said federal legislation that would provide funds for city public works projects is pending and if the city is ready with architectural plans for its project it could very well receive some of those funds.

However, the council voted 2-3 to reject that appropriation. Mayor Janice Fulford and Councilman Stan Farber voted for it.

One concern of council members who voted No was that they would be approving architectural plans before seeing the Environmental Impact Report concerning the project.

The Planning Commission has certified that EIR but it has not yet been forwarded to the City Council.

Sharp Park resident John Curtis accused the City Council of stonewalling and stifling all discussion of the proposed Sharp Park site.

He has contended that the corporation yard will be inappropriately located amid residences and that the council did not sufficiently study other alternative sites for the yard.

The city must build a yard or provide a temporary yard soon.

Presently, the yard is located at the city's sewage treatment plant and the expansion of the plant to secondary treatment — scheduled to begin this fall — will force the corporation yard out of that site.

"The council has been extremely derelict in its duties," Curtis claimed. "You are making an investment and making a commitment to this piece of land."

He said the decision to build at Sharp Park was "political," later explaining that the appropriateness of the Sharp Park property depends upon where one lives.

None of the council members resides in Sharp Park.

At one point, the discussion became a debate between Councilman Farber and Curtis, each calling the other out of order.

Curtis insisted that the council is ramrodding the corporation yard proposal on Sharp Park School.

However, Weidner said the architectural plans will be developed so that they can be applied to another site of similar shape and of similar features if the council changes its mind about Sharp Park.

"We would not develop the plan so specifically that it would only be applicable to the Sharp Park School site," Weidner said.

The Laguna Salada School District is asking $211,000 for the property. Curtis said other properties are available for less.

The council wasn't convinced, however, that architectural plans should be developed.

Weidner later said that if the legislation does go through and the council has not allowed the staff to prepare architectural plans ahead of time, the city will likely not be prepared to seek the federal funds.

Farber asked that the architectural plan preparation again be considered on Aug. 9 when the council reviews a general plan amendment and rezoning which will allow construction of the yard in Sharp Park.

The council also:

• Agreed to reconsider on Aug. 9 its plans to place a tax override for beach maintenance on the November ballot.

• Appropriated $500 to pay for a negative declaration for a zoning amendment that eventually will permit organized motorcycle riding on agricultural land, including Mori's Point, as sought by the Coastside Motorcycle Club.

• Asked its staff to draw up a certificate of public convenience so that the Peninsula Cab Co. can begin operating in Pacifica. The council rescinded the franchise agreement with Pacifica Cab Co. last month after the company failed to promise specific improvements in its service.

Stations

men on the day shift, four men on the swing, and two on graveyard.

Some 50 per cent of the station's revenue was coming from the pumps and he was meeting rent payments of 2.15 cents per gallon based on a 75,000 gallon a month allocation with ease.

That's all changed now.

Since two self-service stations opened in San Bruno last year, a Mohawk station to the south of Sossikian's dealership and a Shell-owned station several blocks to the north, the Armenian pumps only 60 per cent of the gas he pumped last year.

For the past year he says he has pumped between 90,000 and 95,000 gallons a month and during one month he claims he only pumped 60,000 gallons.

The loss in revenue forced Sossikian to lay off seven employes.

"These self-service stations are killing me," says Sossikian. "That Mohawk station has taken at least 30 per cent of my customers. I just can't compete with these major oil company-owned stations and the independent ones.

"I CAN'T REALLY blame my customers for deserting me," Sossikian adds. "They say the self-service stations are cheaper and I can't argue with that."

Sossikian like other dealers has attempted to compete with the new stations by opening one self-service island, but it has not helped him all that much.

"Although I've lowered the price (of gas) on the self-service island and brought some customers back, I'm still several cents above what all self-service offers, he says. "I just can't go any lower and still meet my expenses."

Sossikian says he was reluctant to establish a self-service island to meet the competition because he felt it was unsafe to allow customers to handle the pumps. "and because it went against everything Shell had ever taught me."

"In all my years with Shell I was always taught that service was the best thing going for a gas station. Now all of a sudden when things get tough the oil company wants us to go self-service.

"I FOUGHT AGAINST using it, even though I was losing money, but I finally gave into their wishes."

Jim Campbell is the president of the California Service Stations Association representing most all the major oil company dealers in the state. He agrees with Sossikian that the increasing popularity of self-service stations will over the next five years reduce the number of dealers by 50 per cent.

"I don't see the traditional full-service dealer becoming extinct," says Campbell, "because there will always be those who will want full service and who will be willing to pay for it.

"But it will only be the large dealers who will survive — those who can afford to give a lot of service and attract a big clientele in their back shops.

"It will be the company-owned stations and all self-service who can provide gas at a lower price that will phase out the dealers, just like the big supermarkets eliminated the full service mom and pop grocery store. People today are very economy-minded," he adds.

SELF-SERVICE stations indeed may be leading to the demise of the full service station dealership, but Campbell sees another major oil company business practice that is undermining dealers "unfair gasoline pricing."

Campbell claims that oil companies have found that selling gas through their own company-operated outlets is far more profitable than through dealerships, so the major companies through pricing are forcing the dealers out of business.

"It is common practice now" says Campbell "for the major oil companies to sell gas to dealers and to independent outlets wholesale for the same price as they retail the gas at their own stations. They create an unfair competition where they benefit at the expense of the dealers."

Campbell's statistics show that Gulf Oil Co. last year increased its company-owned stations in California by 61 per cent. Shell increased its stations by 30 per cent.

Boy, Girl Flee in House Fire

A quick-spreading fire, possibly touched off by exploding firecrackers, forced a Pacifica boy and his sister to flee their home in the Linda Mar section of the Coastside city about 3:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Damage was estimated at over $15,000 to the single-story home and its contents, fire investigators said.

One Pacifica fireman, Jim Barner, braved the smoke and flames to rescue three family pets — a dog and two caged parakeets.

Lisa Thompson, 19, and her 12-year-old brother, Kelly, fled the home from a rear door, it was reported.

The Place Zone Appeal Put Off

The San Bruno City Council Monday night voted to continue to Aug. 9 a public hearing on an appeal by Lincoln Property Co. of a denial of the company's rezoning application.

Denny McLarry, a partner in Foster City development company, requested the continuance to allow his firm additional time to prepare for the hearing.

The Planning Commission, by a split vote last month, denied an application by Lincoln Property Co. to rezone a seven-acre parcel at the corner of Sneath Lane and Cherry Avenue to allow for the expansion of The Place apartment complex.

The company wants to build 176 new apartment units on the site.

In other action, the council agreed to request that the California Department of Transportation (Caltrans) open a median strip along El Camino Real in front of the Tanforan Park Shopping Center.

Chewing Gum Bonus

A Final PAL Gift From Dying Woman

There was one $5 donation worth more than many others combined when the South San Francisco Police Athletic League donations began to pour in this week.

Officer Fred Carelli said letters were sent out Monday to all South San Francisco residents announcing the annual fund-raising drive for the Police Department sponsored youth sports program.

The South San Francisco PAL involves nearly 1,000 boys and girls in baseball, bowling, soccer and a rifle safety program every year.

Carelli said the PAL receives hundreds of donations but one of the first ones to arrive this year was from a 78-year-old woman.

She enclosed $5 and a note that said, "Sorry donation isn't more — on Social Security."

The senior citizen indicated she was a terminal cancer patient but thought the donation was important.

"To the future of America — our youth," she wrote.

In it, she enclosed a bonus — two sticks of chewing gum.

4,000 Sign Jail Petitions

By FRANK LaPIERRE

Support continues to mount for construction of a permanent pre-arraignment detention facility in the North County.

Already, Daly City has received petitions bearing more than 4,000 signatures of citizens asking the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors to retain a PDF in the area.

The PDF presently is located at the Daly City jail and operates with government grant money. San Bruno, Daly City, South San Francisco and Pacifica police departments use the facility to process persons awaiting arraignment in North County courts.

Previously, these prisoners had to be transported to Redwood City and processed into the county jail there.

This required a police officer to escort the prisoner to Redwood City, thus taking him off the "beat" and causing a loss of protection, police officials point out.

At a meeting in Colma last week, members of the North San Mateo County Council of Cities again showed their unanimous support of the PDF by emphasizing that each city should personally inform county supervisors of the need for this facility.

On May 6, the NCCC had passed a resolution asking the supervisors to continue the facility operating in the North County; pointing up its value to cities utilizing it.

Assistant Daly City Police Chief Richard Sims said, "I get the feeling of complete support and endorsement for the PDF from communities involved."

Supervisor John Ward, who attended last week's NCCC meeting and praised the Daly City facility, said "Unofficially, several of my fellow board members have been openly receptive to the idea of continuing the program."

But continued funding of the jail using county money would only be a "short-term solution," Ward said.

"A long-term solution must be found. At this time the question of a (permanent) facility is unresolved as far as the majority of the board is concerned," Ward said.

Ward has said he opposes construction of a new jail in the South County, "because it would still not provide an answer to the needs of the north."

The supervisor said he is hopeful there will be an additional grant made to continue operation of the Daly City PDF through the first six months of 1977.

This would give the board time to consider alternatives for construction of such a facility, Ward said.

Messages concerning distribution or delivery of the North County Post should be telephoned between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. (589-1234) or sent in writing to the North County Post, 205 W. Angus Ave., San Bruno, Ca. 94066

Pet, Animal Care Talk At Sanchez Library

Ann Brice of the Peninsula Humane Society is going to be at the Sanchez Library at 2 p.m. today to talk about pet and animal care.

She will show a film about dogs, cats and horses and will be glad to answer any questions you might have about your pet.

Today's program is the third in a series of "Fun at the Library" programs we are having every Wednesday at the Sanchez Library in the Linda Mar Shopping Center. We alternate speakers with meetings of the Book Club whose members are making a Story Quilt and are hoping to collect a file of reviews of their favorite books.

Gail Halterman, a dental hygienest, will talk about dental care and what to expect when you go to the dentist at a future meeting.

All ages are invited to attend these free programs.

Assessment Helps Cut Deficit

There's still at least a $400,000 deficit in South San Francisco's proposed 1976-77 budget despite a county property assessment much higher than the city had anticipated.

The city staff learned last week that South San Francisco property assessments jumped 5.83 per cent over last-year.

Former city manager Ed Alario had anticipated in the proposed 1976-77 budget that there would be a 1.2 per cent property assessment increase based upon early estimates by County Assessor Jack Estes.

Property taxes represent about 25 per cent of the city's annual revenue, totalling $11.3 million for the coming year.

The City Council has been struggling with an unbalanced $9.8 million budget. In June, the council finally postponed dealing with final cutbacks until the exact property tax figure was available.

Finance Director Bill Anderson said the property assessment from the county will decrease the budget's current deficit of more than $600,000 by about $125,000.

It means, however, that there still are some $400,000 worth of cuts the City Council must make in the budget if it is to meet a commitment not to raise the tax rate.

Anderson said the budget staff will be meeting with department heads today and early next week to determine priorities in the proposed cutbacks in their departments.

That list will be presented to the council in August. The budget must be adopted, balanced or not, and a tax rate set by Sept. 1.

Representatives of the Peninsula Manufacturers Association had insisted at a council budget study session last month that the assessment would be much higher than Alario was predicting.

Alario had said he could only count on what the county assessor said.

However, the assessment still is not as high as some businessmen had predicted.

And, the figure is not near the 12.5 per cent increase Alario and the budget staff had originally hoped for 1976-77.

Airman in Illinois

Airman Arsenio B. Soleta, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Honorato Soleta of 296 St. Francis Blvd., Daly City, has been assigned to Chanute AFB, Ill., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks training at Lackland AFB, Tex., the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations.

A Woman Executive For SM Boy Scouts

Robin Walker, a former VISTA worker, last week became the first woman Boy Scout executive in San Mateo County history and one of the first in the Bay Area.

Miss Walker will be assisting Ed Weiseth in running the highly successful Explorer Scout program in this county.

"I am looking forward to working with the career interest and other Explorer units," said Miss Walker who became interested in Scouting when she worked for VISTA in a small Iowa town setting up programs for handicapped people. She applied for a post with the Boy Scouts two years ago and was appointed this week after working in Santa Clara County teaching pre-school handicapped children.

Robin Walker

At least one-third of the Explorer Scouts in the career interest posts in this county are girls. There are no girls in the Cub Scout program nor the regular Boy Scout program. A recent court ruling held that Boy Scouts did not have to admit girls.

"We hope to get more women leaders interested in Exploring," said Miss Walker who noted that the role of a den mother has been the main thrust of women in Boy Scouting.

Miss Walker is a native of Oklahoma with a history degree from University of California at Davis. She hopes to attend the National Exploring Institute in October after completing her probationary period here.

"Industries can help themselves by helping form career Exploring posts," she said. "We hope to continue the major program here."

Clarify EOC Role, Chairman Asks

The chairman of the San Mateo County Economic Opportunity Commission says he is concerned that the county manager's office is taking over the functions of the commission.

Tony M. Gonzales made his comments Thursday night as the commission reviewed actions which George Riley, executive assistant to County Manager M.D. Tarshes, plans as a result of $113,428 in overexpenditures by the EOC.

In a message to Edward R. Becks, executive director of the EOC, Riley noted that the Board of Supervisors has supported the concept of a management assistance committee appointed by the county manager, and further directed that the county manager be responsible for exercising control over the EOC's budget in order to avoid any further overexpenditures during the period of an audit which is scheduled to be completed in October.

"Don't you think the Board of the Supervisors would have the courtesy to tell us 'you're no longer needed'?" Gonzales stated.

The chairman referred specifically to the fact that Riley's report on the actions he intends to take were addressed to Becks and not to the commission.

Commissioner Dolores Randall said she didn't believe the situation is as dire as Gonzales believes it to be, but did state that the commission should address a letter to the Board of Supervisors to "clarify" the matter.

Assigned

Airman Robert A. Garay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Garay of 124 Frankfort St., Daly City, has been assigned to Keesler AFB, Miss., after completing Air Force basic training. The airman is a 1973 graduate of Serramonte High School and attended San Francisco State University.

Michael Giannini . . . A Serramonte High School graduate who wants to continue his studies at UC Davis and hopes to go to law school . . . His home is in Daly City.

Jesus Hernandez . . . Lives in South San Francisco and was graduated from South San Francisco High School . . . Is interested in becoming an architect and plans to attend UC Berkeley.

Lynette Huth . . . Lives in San Mateo . . . Is working towards an RN degree and will be able to complete her studies at CSM.

Joan Sommerfeld . . . Lives in San Mateo . . . Is aiming toward a degree in biomedical engineering and plans to continue her education at an outstanding university of her choice.

Rita McLaughlin, Robert Rogers Wed in Belmont

The Immaculate Heart of Mary Church in Belmont was the setting for the marriage of Rita Mary McLaughlin and Robert Richard Rogers.

Rita is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. McLaughlin of Belmont and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Philip Rogers of South San Francisco.

The bride wore a gown of white batiste with nylon overlay for the ceremony. Her sister Veronica, who was attired in pale green, served as maid of honor.

Others in the bridal contingent were the bride's sisters, Mary and Joan McLaughlin of Belmont; Kris Krajcar of Belmont; Debbie Petrucci of Burlingame and Sabrina Moore of San Francisco.

Robert chose Steve Gilsdorf of San Mateo to be his best man. Ushering guests to their seats were Gary Germano of San Mateo, Jim Petrucci, the bridegroom's brother-in-law, Jack Van Etten, Half Moon Bay, Ron Carmichael of San Mateo and Joe McLaughlin of Belmont, brother of the bride.

A honeymoon trip through the Sierras and Southern California followed the reception in St. Michael's Hall, Belmont. The newlyweds are living in Hayward.

Rita is the granddaughter of Rose McLaughlin of Belmont, and has two more sisters, Clare and Maureen, and a brother, Mark.

The bridegroom is the grandson of Betty Moon and Florence Roger of San Francisco and Frances Bryant of Pacifica.

He is an alumnus of Serra High School, the College of San Mateo and Heald Engineering College in San Francisco.

The bride is a graduate of Notre Dame High School.

Special County Census Asked

San Mateo County Planning Director Donald A. Woolfe was to recommend to the Board of Supervisors Tuesday that it authorize expenditure of $382,000 for a countywide special census by the State Department of Finance during October.

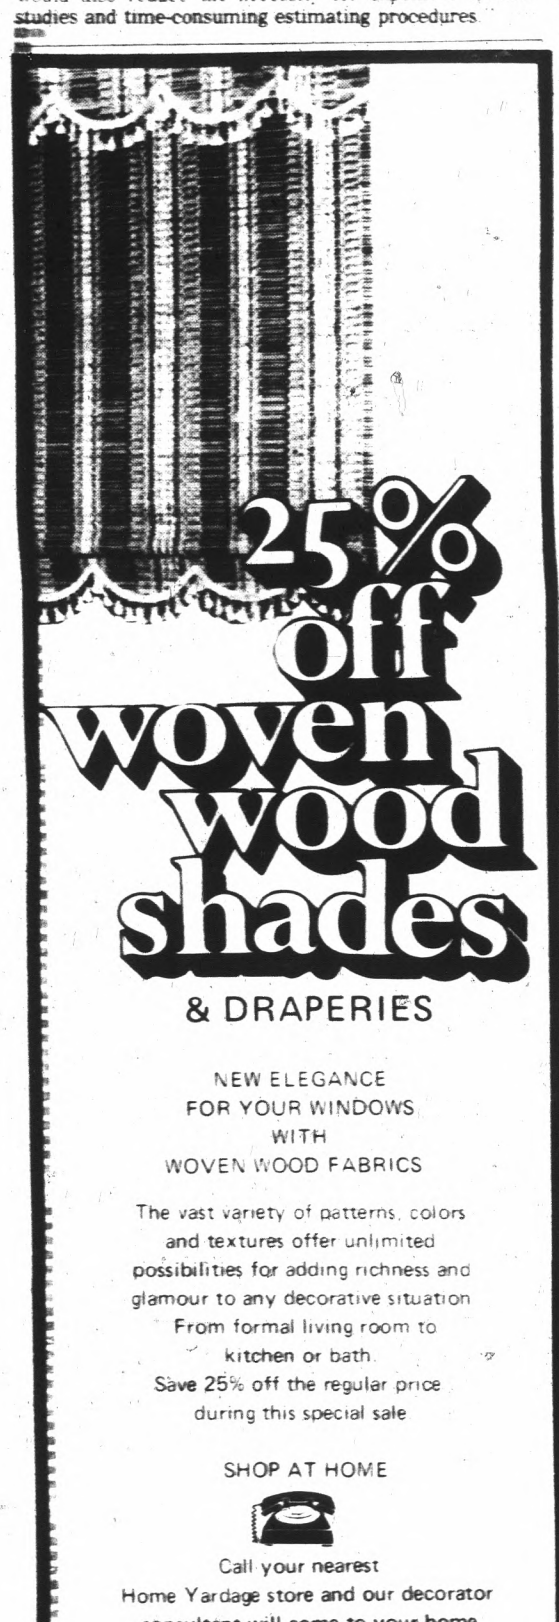

In his report, Woolfe says that the county as a whole and some cities are experiencing population growth which, if verified through a special census, could generate revenues from increased subventions disbursed on a per capita basis.

The planning director estimates that of the total cost of the special census, all but $70,000 would be recovered by 1980 from increased revenues and reimbursements from cities experiencing population growth.

Woolfe estimates that cities would realize an increase of $566,312 in subventions over the four-year period as a result of the special census, while the county would receive $311,668, leaving it some $70,000 short of the census cost after reimbursement.

Woolfe said that only those cities which show a population gain over their last certified estimate will be required to reimburse the county.

Woolfe said the $70,000 deficit the county would experience may be considered as the "cost of a valuable body of statistical information which the census will yield, such as high-quality detailed data on age composition of the population, household makeup, ethnic status, housing costs, unemployment levels, commuting patterns and other information which would improve the quality of research in many areas for years to come and would also reduce the necessity for expensive special studies and time-consuming estimating procedures."

Small Business Is Big in Folklore

Let's Hear It for 'The Little Guy'

By JANET REINKA

He's part of American folklore, the little guy who had only his store and what was in it, who worked hard, saved, and all the while was building America.

We like to think that small business was the foundation of America. Today, with the spread of shopping centers and retail chains, many believe the little guy is doomed to disappear.

We decided to find out what it is like for the little guy today.

Is he discouraged? Two hundred years after the nation was founded, how is he making it in the bicentennial year?

We talked to dozens of them. What we found was refreshing. Here are some of them, descendants of Paul Revere, shopowner.

"I went out on a limb, I went out to the leaves for the loan for this shop," said Heidi Tiura-Reynolds, 24, of her tee shirt shop, Heidishirts at 309 Main St. in Half Moon Bay. The loan was for a few thousand dollars.

"I opened July 7 last year. My family says, 'It's nice to have a successful business, but it's too bad you don't make any money.'

"It all goes back into the shop. Actually, I didn't think it would do this well. I think, I hope, I'll be able to pay off the loan by the end of the year. That's pretty good, don't you think?"

The first four months, she worked from 12 to 14 hours a day, seven days a week, taking off only one day — for a funeral. Now she has two clerks.

Sitting outdoors with her dog Pearlie, polishing her toenails or rummaging through a file of glow-color transfers one day last week, Ms. Tiura-Reynolds hardly fit the image of the entrepreneur.

"People see me out front with Pearlie and they think this is easy," she said. "My advice to anybody who wants to go into business is that you've got to be willing to work hard and like your customers. And you'd better know your product real well."

And believe in it. Concerning her personalized shirts, dresses, purses and other items, Ms. Tiura-Reynolds has the exuberance of an entire sixth grade.

She unfurls a tee shirt with a blackbird silhouetted against a deep gold sky, craggy maroon below. "Look at this," she said proudly. "This is Utah, boy."

Ms. Tiura-Reynolds, who had previously worked in other people's fabric stores, said the business came about this way.

"I was lying in bed with my husband Neil and suddenly I sat up and said, 'Neil! I have to open a tee shirt store!' He said, 'Okay.' It really blew me out. I thought he would help me out, but, with his own job, he didn't have the time. So I did it all." Neil is with the sheriff's department.

Ms. Tiura-Reynolds enjoys helping her customers make their iron-on statements about life.

"Indecision doesn't work in this store," she said. "One man wanted to buy a shirt for his little boy. He said, 'This kid thinks the sun rises and sets in me.' So we put their two names around the sun (like a sunset)."

As with most of the business people interviewed, she doesn't want her business to get any bigger.

"I know what I want to offer," she said. "I can't get 15 million copies of Heidi. I didn't go into business to retire at 30. It's not my style."

Personal service. They call it built-in job security.

John Hughes, for example, owns a Shell station at 1490 Burlingame Ave., Burlingame. He won't let a car out of his shop unless the engine is steam-cleaned and spray-glazed.

An electronic beeping device like those that doctors carry summons him from a glass of tea at a lunch counter.

"I carry this because I want to know what's going on," he said. "The average man wants to be treated as an individual. People are tired of being told 'you'll have to do it yourself'."

On the floor of Bob Thorbin's plant store on San Mateo Avenue in San Bruno is a red carpet with the words "You're No. 1 with Us."

He posts a reward sign next to the cash register. A customer lost his dog.

They went into business because they wanted a better life — seldom to get rich. They like their independence.

Janet Spinosa, for example, is a 45-year-old teaching assistant at a school in South San Francisco who pins her hopes on getting out of the classroom by making a success of her antique store, Second Time Around. It is at 458 Old Country Road in Pacifica.

"Any old relic is going to get more valuable," she said. "There's no waste. It's recycling. I like being in complete control of bringing into the store what I want."

Although she thought the business would do a little better when she started it almost two years ago, she has hopes that she will be able to open a second.

Likewise her neighbor, who runs an "antique clothing" store, Cloth Jungle, in a sense started a new life as much as a new business. Because of personal reasons, she asked that her name not be used.

She needed a job she could do standing up because of back problems, and she also wanted to be successful enough to have free time for leisure. With a second shop due to open soon in San Francisco, however, she has none.

She plunges into a rack jammed with clothes from another era and is momentarily engulfed by fabrics that no one makes anymore.

"Some things like this are so ugly they're intriguing," she said smiling, holding up a red and white pantsuit.

"Usually I can tell right away who's going to be interested in these old clothes. I really enjoy providing things for people to express their own individuality."

A VANISHING BREED

Archie and Margaret Fregosi ring up a few items for a boy shopping at their mom and pop store in South San Francisco. Fregosi believes that in a short time there will no longer be stores like theirs.

KNOWING THE PRODUCT

Heidi Tiura-Reynolds wears one of the dozens of brightly-colored tee shirts she sells at her shop on Main Street in Half Moon Bay. To be successful, she says, a store owner must know the product well.

Some of the businesses are so well-established, the owners feel they're more the customers' than their own.

When Al Mazzoni bought the 25-year-old Towle's Restaurant on Burlingame Avenue in Burlingame two years ago, he painted the inside of the quaint white-shingle restaurant, set out individual plastic containers of cream and put flowers on the table.

The customers complained bitterly.

"They're not into change," he explained. "In the city, you can't get this familiar. Here you gain a one-to-one. This way you have something to fall back on. People want this contact. They want to be able to suggest."

When he quit his father's wrought-iron works business and went searching for something of his own, he chose the lunch counter because, "It's a good business."

In what sense?

"According to the books, the ledger," he said. "That make sense to you? Books. Money."

Three boxes of balloons. Three boxes of candy. That's the ad budget.

A woman comes in. He wraps up $18 worth of spareribs and rings it up. The woman kisses both Mr. and Mrs. Fregosi.

"That woman was on strike six weeks," Archie Fregosi said. "But I carried her. And she last paid me."

"The only thing that's keeping me in business is these oldtimers. You'll never lose a dime with them. Where I have trouble is the new accounts. The younger people."

Archie and Margaret Fregosi have run their mom and pop store at 440 Baden Ave. in South San Francisco for 17 years. The subject of retirement is a family joke.

"Some people have trouble with kids," he said. "I don't have no trouble. Kids drag their mothers in here. I give them a balloon, a piece of candy. That's my advertising."

He keeps up free deliveries and carries items like rabbit pellets, chicken scratch and chicken mash. The customers asked for them.

He believes his breed is vanishing. His wife says his biggest regret is that his sons didn't follow him into the grocery business.

But over the cash register, something of a shrine hangs — a dozen framed photographs, a four-foot-high cardboard cutout of a batter, and hanging on hooks, the caps of their son, Jim Fregosi, shortstop with the Texas Rangers.

Archie Jr., another son, is in the shop that day with his own son Paul, 3. A salesman for a restaurant supply distributor, he "just wanted something of my own."

They complain that there isn't enough parking near their shops. Taxes are too high. They hate paperwork.

But for most of them, business is pleasure.

Bob Notz was an anti-trust lawyer with Diamond Match Co., Campbell's Soup Co., and finally Foremost, before McKesson was added. Two years ago, he quit to run a successful bookstore at 1411 Burlingame Ave. in Burlingame.

"I wanted to be my own boss, to work near home rather than be dependent on the whims of a multinational corporation," he said deliberately.

Is this better?

"Definitely."

A lean man dressed in open shirt and slacks, he seems relaxed in the store, which carries the variety of hardcovers the wealthy residents of Hillsborough and Burlingame buy.

"I'm not selling merchandise," he said. "I'm selling a friend. It's rewarding because you're providing people with information and education that is of more lasting quality than that offered on that magic screen.

"When I worked for Foremost, not only did my children not understand what I did — Sometimes, neither did I. Here my main problem is the constant responsibility of keeping things going. You cannot avoid paperwork."

Because of the store's presence in an affluent, book-reading area, the store does very well, but Notz believes any small business will flourish if it serves the public.

"I know from the inside that huge companies are simply unable to meet all the needs of people in an effective and efficient way," he said.

"I don't think there's anything better than small business. That's not to say there's not a role for a store for the one-stop shopper who knows what he wants. But no small competent businessman need fear competition from big companies."

Aussie Robbed

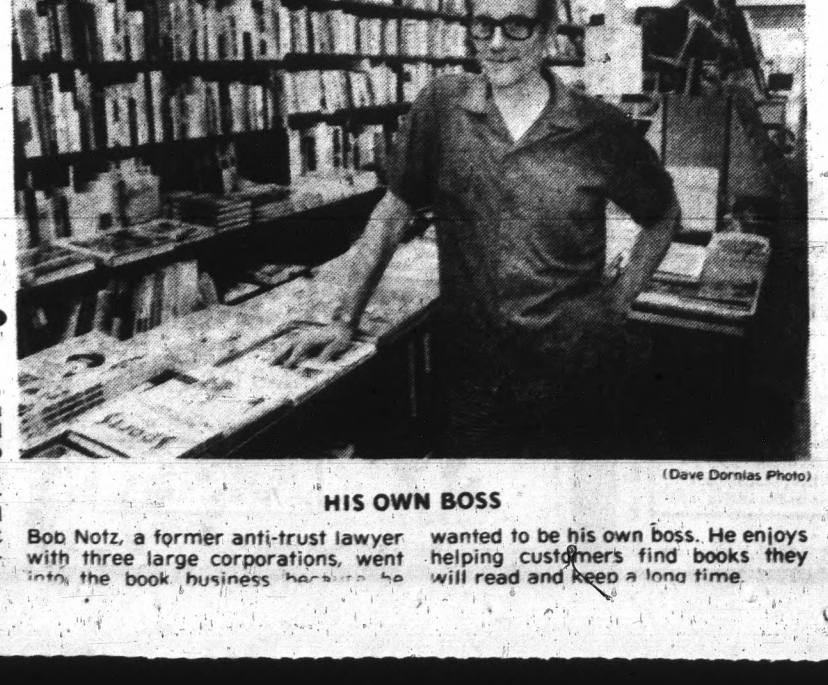

An Australian staying at the Holiday Inn at 245 S. Airport Blvd. in South San Francisco was robbed at gunpoint late Thursday outside his motel room.

South San Francisco police said Michael Edward Somers, 34, was returning to his room at about 11 p.m. when he was confronted by a man and woman.

The man, carrying an automatic, robbed the visitor of $90 in cash, $220 in travelers checks and a camera, and the pair fled, police said.

One Proposal — Eliminate Job Entirely

SSF Trustees Told How to Hire Supt.

By JANET PARKER

The South San Francisco school board got what it was looking for Wednesday night — suggestions on how to select a new superintendent.

The trustees also heard a suggestion that they hadn't hoped for — that the job be eliminated entirely.

The resignation of Supt. Dr. Paul Nielsen effective Sept. 1 inspired the school district board to seek community sentiment as the search for a replacement begins.

Nielsen served 13 years in the South San Francisco Unified School District — the largest in the county.

The trustees have chosen retiring Menlo Park school superintendent Franklin White to head a committee that will screen all applications, expected to number about 150. A selection will be made by the board in November.

Most of the approximately 50 residents who attended the public session were concerned about the selection process — particularly the screening committee.

Most left the meeting satisfied that the community will be represented in an advisory committee at the second stage of the selection.

White will be joined by San Bruno school Supt. Bill Jennings and Jefferson Union High School District Associate Supt. Hal Tonini in the screening.

Some of those who attended were concerned that the all-white male committee will narrow the field of contenders down to a sampling representative of itself.

There were suggestions that a teacher or one person from the community be added to the committee.

"The point is the community wants its 2 cents worth," said resident Morton Herman.

Trustee Patsy Milliard sided with the complainants and suggested that one other person who is not a school superintendent be added.

"I am simply suggesting that there be someone on the committee of a different perspective," Mrs. Hilliard said. "I would feel more comfortable with it."

Board President Tom Henkle was irked by implications that White couldn't be impartial. He said the public and board were giving White a "vote of no-confidence." The audience and other board members disagreed.

Resident Carolyn Nash pointed out that the board hadn't clearly defined how the community will be involved in the selection.

"I hear people saying this community advisory group's . . . role has not been articulated well enough to assure people or impress upon them this committee really does have a role," Mrs. Nash said.

Board members explained that White's committee will present 10 to 30 recommended candidates along with all the applications to a committee of staff and community representatives. Then the advisory group can review the recommendations, or all the applications, and make its own recommendation to the board.

How the committee will be selected has not been determined, although several persons in the audience volunteered to serve.

It was a district teacher, Robert Gehl, who advocated the extreme position of eliminating the superintendent job.

Gehl has told Trustees in past meetings that administrative jobs should be eliminated and the work done by teachers on a part-time basis.

He told the board it is looking for a superintendent who will "keep the district quiet and sleepy and off the front pages — just like San Bruno and Menlo Park."

He said the "prize" in South San Francisco will go to the individual with lots of titles, one or more strategically placed relatives and an ability to evade questions.

"Rather than Thanksgiving for the coronation, I suggest April 1," he said.

He recommended that the search committee be dismissed, that no superintendent be hired, saving $38,000, and that, if there must be a superintendent, a classroom teacher should take over the job at the same salary he or she now gets as a teacher.

Board President Henkle called Gehl "the poor man's Mort Sahl" and Trustee John Dillon said he resented the implications belittling the whole framework of education.

Public Employe Wages May Lead to Unification

By DUANE SANDUL and RICK SULLIVAN
(First of six articles)

The spiraling cost to taxpayers for the employment of public workers in San Mateo County may spearhead consolidation of municipal and county functions and the unification of school districts.

More and more cities and school districts are finding that the salary and fringe benefit packages negotiated by public unions are spelling disaster for governmental coffers.

Some view public unionism as the cause. Others view it as a sign of the economic times.

But the divergent sides agree: Something must be done.

One out of every 11 persons in the county working force is employed by cities, schools, hospitals, special-purpose districts and the county.

James Fales

In some instances their salaries have climbed to parity or surpassed what is paid for similar work in the private sector. In many instances, public employe benefits equal or surpass those in the private sector.

And many of the nearly 20,000 local government and school district employes are in an unusual position — through their unions' political involvement, they can help choose their bosses at the polls.

In a six-part series beginning today, The Times examines several elements of public employment in San Mateo County, its effect on your pocketbook, the behind-the-scenes jockeying for financial and operational superiority, and possible alternatives to drive down costs.

County taxpayers last year were billed about $240 million in property taxes, of which about $180 million paid for salaries and benefits of local government employes.

The county has 19 cities, 25 school districts and 39 special-purpose districts.

By and large, elected and appointed government officials defend the salaries of public employes. Most believe they are not out of line. By the same token, most of those same officials agree that without the surge of public unionism in the last decade salaries wouldn't be as high as they are today.

These higher salaries are forcing many government officials to consider consolidation of government functions.

Larry Armstrong, executive director of the watchdog Governmental Research Council, states, "Public unionism may kill the goose that laid the golden egg by securing higher wages and benefits and forcing governments to look at alternative means of producing services at lower costs."

Conversely, Tom Jones believes that public employes are being blamed for the economic plight of government.

Jones is a business manager for the American Federation of State, Municipal and County Employes, which represents 4,400 school, city and county workers.

"If government has to tell the taxpayers that there is going to be a tax increase, they are going to have to do it and not remain politically proper by having public employes subsidize programs," asserts Jones.

But comments James Fales, Redwood City manager: "Budgets go up more in jurisdictions which are unionized, especially in Northern California.

"I can't stop it, but a community can," he adds.

A question of fairness and equity is involved. Everybody is out for number 1. If the community collectively becomes number 1, somebody has to be number 2."

Changing Views of Public Employes

By DUANE SANDUL and RICK SULLIVAN
(Second of six articles)

Some municipal officials insist that local government employes "enjoy the best of two worlds" — iron-tight job security, and wages and benefits that in many cases surpass that paid to workers in private industry.

Officials of public labor organizations counter that their members have become the taxpayers' "whipping boys."

They claim that public employes are unfairly blamed for the economic woes of government, and contend that salaries and benefits for public employes are just beginning to reach parity with workers in the private sector.

Both views reflect elements of truth. What is clear is that public employes are becoming increasingly dissatisfied with traditional civil service representation and are opting to join unions to enhance their wage and benefit status.

The influence of unions in the public sector has contributed to an increasing tax load on property owners due to climbing salaries. The cities and county last year garnered about $76 million in property taxes for their budgets.

Larry Armstrong, executive director of the Governmental Research Council, comments, "Historically civil service employes were satisfied to receive lower pay than private industry. They settled for a trade-off instead of higher salaries public employes would receive, security against layoffs and a sweeter retirement.

"Now," he continues, "with the advent of collective bargaining the employes have experienced a shift. They are going after higher pay and more benefits, and still have security and a sweet retirement plan."

Tom Jones, union representative for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, calls the civil service system a "dinosaur looking for a glacier."

"I think the theory that civil service provides protection for employes is a myth. Civil service doesn't have working class representation. Unions protect employes, not civil service," Jones adds.

AFSCME is the largest public labor organization in San Mateo County, representing some 4,400 county, city, special-purpose district and classified school employes. Membership has climbed nearly 40 per cent in the past 10 years.

City managers including Gerald Minford of San Bruno, Lee Horner of Millbrae and James M. Fales of Redwood City acknowledge that the advent of public unionism has accelerated wage and benefit increases for government employes, beyond that which they might have been paid had they not been unionized.

The managers matter-of-factly admit that taxes might not be as high as they presently are if unions had not entered the picture.

But yet, Lee Horner sums up the comments of many city managers, stating, "Eventually public employes would have reached parity with wages paid to private workers. Unions just speeded up the process."

Most city managers report that from 65 to 70 per cent of their budgets are spent on personnel costs — both wages and benefits.

While some managers berate the amount of benefits government employes receive, by-and-large they say they have no qualms over the wages the employes earn. In fact, they say they attempt to pay their workers on a scale comparable with private industry.

The San Mateo County Charter mandates that all employes shall be paid equal to their counterparts in the private sector and surrounding public agencies. Supervisors William H. Royer and James V. Fitzgerald are offering a ballot measure to amend that requirement.

Meanwhile, we have discovered that many public employes do indeed make as much as their counterparts, and in some cases they earn more. And, of course, there are a few areas in which they receive less.

Comparisons between the two sectors are difficult because job duties are different.

But there are comparable positions.

For instance, the average starting salary for a clerk-typist in the public sector in San Mateo County is $704 per month, with the top salary at $865.

According to the Bay Area Salary Survey, which computes salaries paid workers in private industry, the median starting pay for a private clerk-typist is $608, and the top median pay is $910.

Another example is that of custodians or janitors. Those working for the county or municipalities earn an average of $825 to $1,001 per month.

The survey reports that the same worker in the private sector starts at $750 and climbs to $917.

The Times' survey of three major private employers in San Mateo County (each asked not to be named) shows that the public custodians' starting salary is $223 per month more than what they pay, while the top salary averages $140 more.

But Jones, the AFSCME leader, replies, "It's wrong for anybody to claim that any public employe is doing better than private industry. In most cities and in the county, employes pay a share of health benefits and retirement — 7 per cent for retirement, and from $20 to $30 per month for health insurance."

"The public employe just doesn't net what a worker in the private sector does," he maintains.

In any event, both the union and government officials say that they don't like comparisons anyway, belying the theory that one can garner any statistics he wants to prove a point.

State and local statistics show that most municipal workers received average salary increases over a five-year period ending last March commensurate with increases paid to workers in the private sector — about 5 to 10 per cent below the total rise in the cost of living during that period.

Policemen and firemen, however, have done somewhat better.

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the cost of living increased in the Bay Area 39 per cent from March of 1971 to March of 1976.

Local statistics show that in several county cities, including Burlingame and Millbrae, firemen and policemen came within 4 per cent of the cost of living increase over five years and in one city, San Bruno, the wage increases for public safety employes jumped 40 per cent in five years.

A San Bruno police patrolman or firefighter can earn a top pay of $1,338 per month, excluding extra pay for education.

Former San Bruno Fire Chief Herb Freitas has reported that many fire fighters in the city make slightly more than $18,000 per year.

It should be noted that those firemen who belong to San Mateo County Firefighters Union Local 2400 all received greater salary increases over the past five years than did those firemen in the county who are not Local 2400 members.

Policemen in this county do not belong to unions, but instead form bargaining units in their respective cities.

The subject of firemen is a sore one with San Bruno City Manager Minford. He claims that fire fighters are overpaid for the work they perform under a 24-hour shift schedule.

"It's my opinion that firemen work, actually work, only 20 hours per week. The rest of the time they are sleeping," said Minford. "For those 20 hours they are paid very well."

"We have 34 employes in our fire department," he continued, "and many of the firemen are making over $18,000 per year. And add to that 30 per cent more in benefits."

Minford also contends that firemen file more job complaints or grievances than the other five labor groups in the city combined. This, he maintains, is a drain on management time and tax dollars.

"It's not difficult to understand why firemen

"It was kind of fun listening to," acknowledges Mrs. Robert Brizuela who recently was honored by radio station KABL as "Citizen of the Day."

Mrs. Brizuela is an active member of the Our Lady of Mercy parish and she was nominated for the KABL award as a result of her efforts as publicity chairwoman for the Westlake Catholic Women. The announcement of the selection of Mrs. Brizuela was made over radio station KABL at 8:45 a.m., 11:45 a.m., 2:45 p.m. and at 6:45 p.m. July 5. In addition she was sent a congratulatory letter and a certificate of Award.

MEMBERS OF MARY's HELP Hospital Guild have said farewell to two faithful workers.

Mrs. William Finlayson has curtailed her involvement in the guild program since she and her family have moved to Berkeley and it has been a move out of the area, this time to Walnut Creek, which has cost the guild the assistman for the Friends of the ance of Mrs. Russell Majors.

Members of the guild's Boutique Committee continue to meet during the summer months to ready items for sale at the preholiday event in November. Anyone interested in assisting with guild projects is urged to contact the volunteer coordinator at the hospital, Mrs. Mary McCoy, for information. The hospital phone number is 992-4000.

MRS. ALVIN SCHWARZBACH, membership chairman for the Friends of the Daly City Library, is still seeking new members and encouraging former members to renew their affiliation by mailing their membership dues in today.

The "Friends," who sponsor a variety of events and programs to improve local library facilities and encourage the fuller use of the libraries by localites, have four types of memberships available: individual memberships cost $2, family memberships are $3.50, organizational memberships are $5 and patron status is available to anyone contributing $25 or more.

To joing, make checks payable to the Friends of the Daly City Library and mail to Daly City Library, 276 Southgate Ave., Daly City, Ca. 94015.

FRANK GALO and Nanci Reynolds have been named chairmen of the Balboa High School Alumni Association picnic at Flood Park August 8.

Plans have been made for a three-legged race, a tug of war, water filled balloon toss, sack races and a mini carnival for the small fry. A weight guessing booth, a fortune telling mystery lady, a fish pond, ring toss and a marriage booth have all been arranged to help fill the day with fun and excitement.

No advance reservations are needed and the only fee is one for parking, $1 per car, 15 cents per person.

For information about the picnic call Joan Anderson Christensen, 467-5021, or Emily Powell Sumrall, 826-8056.

"FRIENDS OUTSIDE" has come a little closer to achieving sufficient financial backing for the family camp planned for July 25 in the Santa Cruz mountains.

Members of the Foremost-McKesson Task Force recently sponsored a wine and cheese tasting party in the French room of the Sheraton Palace Hotel in San Francisco. Proceeds of the evening event will be used to pay camp cost for the families of men and women in prison.

Still needed to assure a camping opportunity to everyone who is eligible and anxious to go, money, soap, towels and loans or donations of sleeping bags.

If you would like to lend a helping hand, call Friends Outside, 863-5100. Mrs. Rudy Emberg, executive director of the chapter, emphasises that contributions of any amount are most gratefully accepted as the cost of the program is large. Cost for one parent is $58, teenagers cost $38 and children may have the week long camp experience for $28. All moderate costs, but when multiplied by the dozens of families who want desperately to escape the city for a few days, a very large financial obligation.

Soprano, Tenor Due For Concert

"Music At The Gallery" will present soprano Aline de Eraso and tenor Richard Brown July 17 at 8 p.m. They will sing operatic excerpts and show tunes at Periwinkle Art Gallery on Pedro Point, Pacifica.

Aline de Eraso, a native Californian, began her voice training in San Francisco with Mabel Riegelman. While attending U.C. Berkeley, she received a scholarship to continue voice studies abroad and chose Germany where she was accepted as a private pupil of Professor Clemens Glettenberg of Cologne.

She made her debut in Bonn singing Suzanna in "The Marriage of Figaro" and soon became known to audiences in Regersburg and Cologne as well for such roles as "Madame Butterfly," Liu in "Turandot," Pamina in "The Magic Flute" and Mimi in "La Boheme."

After leaving Germany, Miss de Eraso spent several months in Colombia where she was sponsored by the Ministry of Culture in a series of concerts.

Since coming to Stockton, she has appeared as guest artist with the Stockton Symphony, presented concerts at the University of the Pacific, is the principal soprano with the Stockton Opera Association.

Tenor Richard Brown was graduated from the University of the Pacific and teaches in the Stockton Unified School District.

Brown has appeared throughout Northern California in concert, oratorio and opera singing under such conductors as Enrique Jorda of the San Francisco Symphony and Sandor Salgo of the Bach Festival.

Since the formation of the Stockton Opera Association, Brown has been the leading tenor, singing roles in "Butterfly," "La Traviata," "Faust," "Il Trovatore," "The Gypsy Baron" and "The Bartered Bride." Brown is also soloist this spring with the Stockton Symphony's presentation of the "Berlioz Requiem."

A donation of $2.50 for adults, $1.50 for students and senior citizens and $1 for children under 12 is requested. The concert is co-sponsored by the Sheldon Smith Piano Service and Periwinkle Gallery.

For details on the complete program call 359-5230 between noon and 6 p.m.

Scout Winner

T. J. Freitas, a nine-year-old member of Cub Pack No. 248 of Daly City, is shown with the 10-speed bicycle awarded to him for his work in connection with the 1976 Scout-A-Rama.

Pacificans Receive Jobs Certificates of Training

Twenty-eight Pacifica residents have received Certificates of Completion of San Mateo County's Regional Occupational Program (ROP) according to Lee M. Baxter, ROP Director.

They are among 183 county high school students and out-of-school youth and adults who are receiving Certificates of Completion from ROP, which is currently in its seventh year of operations.

ROP was initiated by the San Mateo County Board of Education in cooperation with the county's high school districts, community college district, manpower agencies, business, industry and labor to provide increased vocational training opportunities.

Those receiving Certificates of Completion in the Traffic Service Program are Laura L. Heffron, Sally J. Crijenko, Carol A. Fall, Rita M. Landeros, Laurie A. Steed, Randal F. Weston, Kathy A. Nelson, Betty M. Nevans, Suzanne M. Nolan, Denise A. Riley, Karen J. Ruth and Alan L. Smith.

Those receiving Certificates of Completion in the Bus Driver Training Program are Stanford Morgan, Charlene Tourville and Malinda Meria.

Pacifica To Raise Swim Class Price

Effective July 19, as mandated by the Pacifica City Council, all children's swim lessons will be increased by $1 per class.

For example, children's beginning swimming is currently $3. Anyone registering a child after July 19 will pay $4.

All adult swim classes will be increased from $7.50 to $9.50. Registration prior to July 19 for sessions 3, 4, or 5 will be taken at the current fee structure.

Hula Hoop In D.C.

Brightly colored hula hoops will be spinning in Daly City during the week of July 19-23 as all local playgrounds will hold fun competition through the week.

Youngsters will try their skills on such tricks as the knee knocker, the stork, the hula hoop and wrap the mummy.

Local winners and runners-up will be eligible to compete in the city-wide finals July 23 at 1 p.m. at Westmoor High School.

The contest, sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Department and the Whamo Co., is open to boys and girls 15 years and under.

Mariner Troop Marks 27 Years

Daly City Girl Scout Mariner Troop No. 13 completed its twenty-seventh year of service by taking its two graduating senior members, Patty Byrne and Sue Dahlin, to dinner at Sophie's in Jack London Village.

Margaret Damon, who has led the troop through all of its 27-year existence, was presented a gift of appreciation by troop members.

Scouts honoring their outgoing seniors include Mary and Theresa Clark, Diane Ridge, Seona Connolly, Janice Hale, Leanna Medina, Julie Lyons, Sue McDowell, Cindy Garcia and Marian Fitzpatrick.

Adults in the party included Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Damon, Mr. and Mrs. John Fitzpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Byrne, Mrs. Elaine McDowell, Darrol O'Brien, Milt Barney and Mr. and Mrs. Mel Dahlin.

Mr. and Mrs. Rober Lapachet, Ron and Tom Dahlin, Robin Christian, Denise Lapachet, Pat Romelfanger and Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Sharpe III completed the guest list.

Mister Magoo Film Set

A full-length feature "Magoo's Snow White" will be shown next week at the Community Centers.

The date for the movie will be as follows: Ortega School at 1:30 p.m. and Pedro Valley at 3 p.m. July 14. Pacific Manor at 1 p.m. and Westview at 3 p.m. on July 15.

For further information about the movies and future movies, contact your community center leaders at your area.

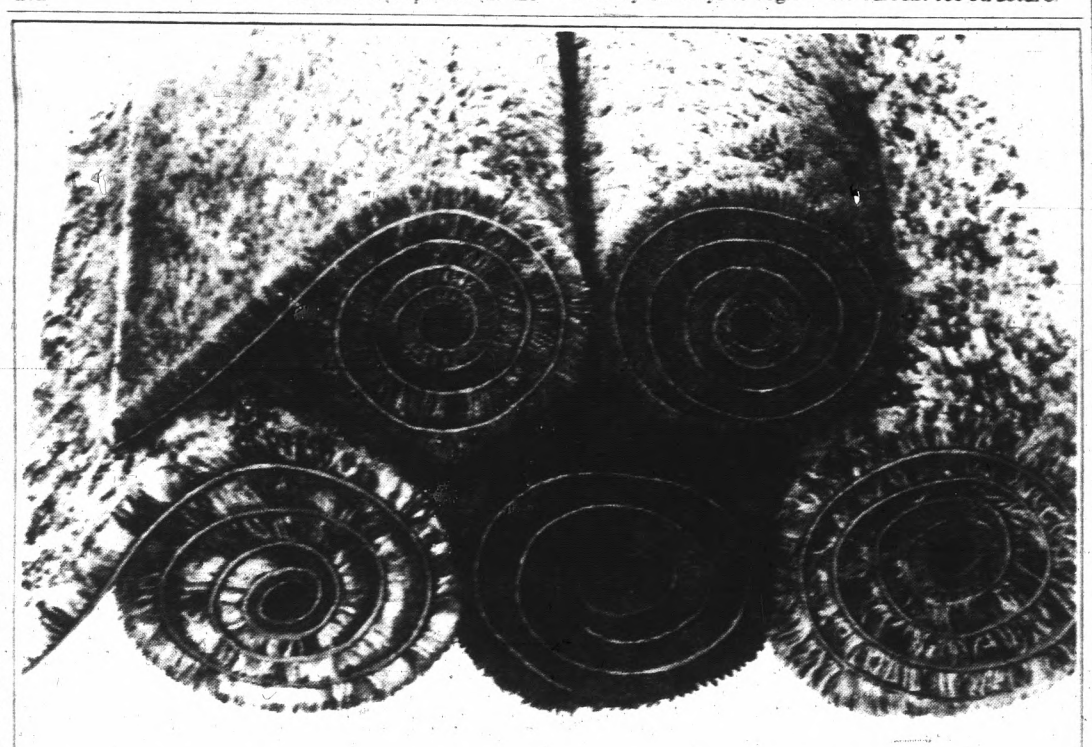

The Pacifica Parks, Beachs and Recreation Department will sponsor the annual cowboy and Indian overnight July 16 and 17.

The event will be held at Terra Nova High School. The activity is open to boys and girls 8 through 12 years of age.

The program will run from 6:30 p.m. Friday to 8 a.m. Saturday. Deadline for signing up for the activity will be July 14 before 4:30 p.m.

The first 15 cowboys and cowgirls or braves and squaws signed up will be allowed to attend.

The department will sponsor the annual community center Junior Talent Show July 21 from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Terra Nova Cafeteria.

New Southern For Southern Elegance

THE NEW SOUTHERN in South San Francisco is featuring full course dinners from $3.95, with such entrees as Baked Virginia Ham, Roast Duckling, Chicken 'n' Dumplings, Lobster Tails and Charcoal Broiled Steaks being among the favorites. Elegant banquet room facilities are also available for parties of 20 to 200. DAVE LITTLE provides the organ entertainment in the lounge Wednesday through Saturday nights. Open daily, except Mondays.....At YOLANDA'S, you can order one half pound live Maine Lobster to go for $6.50 (while they last) on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, July 16, 17 and 18. Yolanda's "Gourmet Special" also includes a complete Maine Lobster Dinner for $9.50 or New England Fried Clams or Scallops for $4.95. Dinners include soup, salad, pasta, vegetables, Du Jour potatoes, and a glass of complementary wine. Open every day..... Dessert snooping: Homemade Strawberry Mousse served at the exotic CASTAWAY, on Coyote Point. Hard to beat.... Big Band Concerts and dancing is the entertainment theme at HYATT LAKE TAHOE, Incline Village, Nevada. Two shows nightly (8 and 11:30 p.m.). HARRY JAMES will take over July 23 and 24, followed by STAN KENTON on August 6. Shows are produced by BARBARA BARBER. Mail in your coupon for reservations (see the Hyatt Lake Tahoe advertisement on BRIGHT LIGHTS).

FAMED ACCORDIONIST

Art Van Damme, voted the top jazz accordionist in the Downbeat poll for 10 consecutive years, brings his recording group to Roland's in the Marina for three nights only, July 17, 18 and 19, in his first San Francisco appearance. The quintet, a fixture at NBC in Chicago for 15 years, has made numerous transcriptions including 139 individual 15 minute shows for RCA Thesaurus.

Nick Gust's Weekend Was a Big Blast

It was a full holiday weekend of celebrating in Rockaway Beach! July 3 and 4 were celebrating days for the 49th anniversary of NICK'S restaurant, which was established by NICK GUST'S father in 1929. It was also the birthday celebration of CHUCK GUST, his sister KATHY, and his wife. Plus, vocalist MARY ANN HAY celebrated her 26th year entertaining at this popular Pacifica restaurant.....Business at the BAYHILL LOUNGE in San Bruno again broke all records over the weekend. Everyone has fun in this friendly atmosphere. Currently attracting the dance crowds Tuesday through Saturday nights is the lively TRI SOUNDS group.....The menu at RODEWAY INN, South San Francisco, offers a variety of dinners at nontourist prices, such as Barbecued Spare Ribs marinated in a special barbecue sauce for $4.95. Dinners include choice of soup or salad, baked potato or French fries, and vegetable. THE BURGANS take over the bandstand Thursdays through Saturdays for dancing.....A sure way to know how Italian food is prepared in sunny Italy is by visiting ROMANO'S in Rockaway Beach. Owner ENRICO ROMANO brings you the complete continental scene, via a selective menu of Italian specialties.....PHIL LEHR, dynamic owner-host of the elegant PHIL LEHR'S STEAKERY, at the bottom of the San Francisco Hilton Tower (Taylor and Ellis entrance), had members of the press rubbing their eyes in disbelief when he demonstrated a revolutionary new electronic stove called the "Fasar" that cooks without a heated surface.

Parking No Problem At Scotty Campbell's

It is always a pleasure to entertain family and friends at SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S in Redwood City for an evening of cocktails and dining. Parking is a major event in some locations. But at this award-winning restaurant the parking area is large and located near the entrance..... VINCE'S ITALIAN AND SEAFOOD restaurant is now open and serving their delicious luncheons and dinner, which is good news to all the steady customers, as well as out-of-towners. Yours Truly, who has been a regular for 15 years, is especially happy.....The gorgeous flowers and plants that fill LEHR'S GREENHOUSE Garden restaurant in San Francisco are so beautiful you will probably want to take them home with you—and you can. All of the plants are for sale and your waiter can have them wrapped to go.....BILL MONTGOMERY has greatly enhanced the quality of live entertainment in the Ivory Coast Lounge of the HOLIDAY INN in Belmont. Bill, who took over as general manager a few months ago, has booked only top-notch groups—and that includes SHIRLEY and THE SHURE THING, who have two weeks remaining in this engagement.

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks.

Do you enjoy baking bread? A few years ago I was on a bread baking spree and spent many happy hours measuring, kneading and baking bread. It was great fun and the results were delicious.

Nowadays I am more inclined to whip up a loaf of quick bread. It is certainly a lot faster than baking yeast bread and the results are just as delicious.

If this little discourse has aroused your interest in baking bread, let me recommend this recipe. As in many quick breads, this loaf can be also used as cake. It's quite sweet, with grated carrots and nuts giving it texture, color and extra food value.

CARROT SANDWICH BREAD

- 1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup salad oil
- 1 cup sugar
- 3 eggs
- 1 cup grated carrots
- ½ cup chopped walnuts

Sift the one and one-half cups flour, one teaspoon each baking soda, baking powder, cinnamon and half teaspoon salt together and set aside.

In mixing bowl, combine the half cup oil, one cup sugar and three eggs, and beat until well blended. Add the sifted dry ingredients and blend well. Stir in the one cup grated carrots and half cup chopped walnuts.

Spoon batter into a greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven for one hour, or until it tests done.

Cool completely. This bread freezes nicely.

Boeing 727 School Grads

Twenty-four persons recently graduated from Hughes Airwest's flight attendant school — the first class to receive training for the airline's new Boeing 727 and 200s.

The graduating class included three Peninsula residents, Jacob Golan of Foster City, Yvonne M. Lubey of Pacifica and Rene L. Moore of San Mateo.

DDS Degree Presentation

Edward A. Dan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Dan of South San Francisco, has received a Doctor of Dental Surgery degree from the University of the Pacific School of Dentistry in San Francisco.

During his college career, which began at College of San Mateo, he received scholarships from the South San Francisco Community Association, from the U.S. Harkson Foundation and a military health professions scholarship from the U.S. Air Force.

Dr. Dan will serve in the Air Force Dental Corps for three years, entering as a captain. He is married to the former Ida Cortese of San Mateo.

The Mystical Highs of the Sports World

"Intrigued" was the word which best described my reaction when I read an article in the San Francisco Examiner's sports section about six months ago by that section's then-resident token intellectual female, Rosalie Muller Wright. It was about the "mystical highs" that some big-name athletes had experienced during certain moments of their careers.

Dave Meggyesy, the former St. Louis linebacker who has been high on just about everything, saw auras around teammates one day after he had been whacked on the head; and later discovered that he could predict where the ball would be going when he was on the field.

John Brodie — without benefit of being hit on the head, aside from the normal smashes from opposition incurred while playing behind a 49er line who generally didn't know where anybody was going — described a "clarity" which would sometimes overcome him, and a slowing down of time, "as if everyone were moving in slow motion."

Roger Bannister, the first man to run the four minute mile in five minutes (well, it used to take him at least a minute to collapse), described an "unseen force" which moved him along despite exhaustion, pain, bleeding feet, and an ugly body.

Golfer Tony Jacklin talked of a "cocoon of concentration" during one tournament, in which everything "came into focus and I could feel my club at every half inch of my swing. I was free from thinking about the various parts of my game. I hit my drive 350 yards, about 50 yards further than I had ever hit a ball. . . ."

Now, I don't know whether she intended it or not, but Ms. Wright seemed to imply that to have such mystical experiences in athletics virtually insured success.

If my assumption is correct, then I know that she made a very basic mistake by limiting her research — as she apparently did — to good athletes. By doing so, she was bound to come to the conclusion she seemed to reach.

If she wanted to get a really comprehensive view of the Mystical Experience in Athletics, she should have talked to me, and some of my friends.

JOE MUZZIN was a running back for Commerce, and later, the South San Francisco Windbreakers.

Joe had very quick feet and was what they called in those days a scatback. But he had a basic problem, as he explained to me once after a game in which he had carried the ball 20 times and gained 180 yards BEHIND the line of scrimmage.

"Geez, you know," he murmured, a faraway look in his eyes, "I got in this here pre-cognitive trance out there today and discovered I had the power to know exactly where every tackler was going to be."

And then there was Jesse Cross, a quarterback for Balboa High, who in one game got thrown for 120 yards in losses, and had three center snaps intercepted.

I interviewed him after that game, and resting between chapters of The Myth of the Birth of the Hero, by Otto Rank, he mumbled, "I had this special kind of feeling which came over me today out there. . . . I seemed to be moving in slow motion and everybody else was moving normally. . . ."

THEN THERE WAS George Parker, a phenomenal distance runner from the old neighborhood.

He told me once about a race he was in in which, "something kept telling me that I had to get across that finish line within the next minute. . . . there was an unworldly urgency in the message that pushed me harder than I had ever pushed myself in my life."

It turned out that the message George was receiving was coming from the belt on his shorts, which had been slowly unraveling. Seconds after he hit the finish line, his shorts fell to his knees. Had he not felt that urgency, he would have lost the race and his modesty.

As it was, he won the race and his trainer managed to get a blanket around him at just the right moment.

As for myself, I used to, before I quit the game, have these mystical experiences on the golf course wherein I could feel my club at every half inch of my swing and get into perfect focus, I never once failed to find a ball I had hit into a tree.

And I know why I was never a major league baseball player.

While guys like Willie Mays were having mystical experiences on the field of knowing where every ball would be pitched and where every ball would be hit, I was having mystical highs in which I saw Marilyn Monroe stripping between the seams of the baseball that was being thrown or hit at me.

It was that kind of mis-directed concentration that made me into a writer. . . . wait, as I sit at this typewriter, I am having a mystical high. . . . Yes, I see it. . . . it comes into focus . . . this newspaper is going to double my salary. . . .

Now THAT's what you call a REAL mystical high.

IF YOU'RE A BASEBALL FAN who craves statistics, trivia, esoterie information, and some interested summer reading, get a copy of The Great No-Hitters ($9.95, Chilton Book Company, 266 pages) by San Francisco Chronicle columnist Glenn Dickey.

Dickey sheds his mantle of controversy in this writing exercise and spins yarns around and dispenses unusual information about the no-hitters in baseball history. (For those who like small print, he offers a summary listing and a box score of every major league no-hitter since 1901, as well as a useful index.)

What was more interesting to this reader than WHO has pitched no-hitters, was who HASN'T pitched them. Would you believe that the following Hall of Fame members never pitched a no-hitter?

You like esoteric information, you say? Try this one. Striking out 17 or more batters in a game has been much rarer for pitchers than pitching a no-hitter.

As for you trivia buffs, you'll find more than you need just in going over the list of no-names and bums who threw no-hitters. Such as Bobo Holloman, the St Louis Brown rookie who threw one in his first major league start and never completed another game. And then there is always Bo Belinsky.

Belinsky, reports Dickey, probably set clean living back a generation or two by pitching that no-hitter after he had been occupied until with a name less young lady. Belinsky blames the fact that he could never again find that girl for his subsequent mediocre pitching career.

Leisure Revolution in Second Week Of Activities

Sports And Recreation

The second week of Leisure Revolution, sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Department, included a variety of tournaments and activities on each of the playgrounds and parks.

Carroms Tournament winners were Billy Moyle for upper division, Roger Zapata for lower division; runners-up were Kathy Moyle, Robert Zapata.

Whiffle ball tournament winners were Robert Zapata, Matt Sullivan and Ray Moyle. Also participating were Sam Culver, Roger Zapata, Billy Moyle. Other players were Latrice Nash, Kathy Moyle, Sal Nauarro.

A new game was introduced called "Buck-Buck." Players were Earl and Steve Soto, Arthur and Richard Catblas, Robert and Roger Zapata, Ray Moyle, Billy Moyle, Sal Novarro, Jerry Lewis, Matthew and Joey Martella.

Kickball is popular with Carol Toothaker, Mari Pender, Ray Moyle, Roger Zapata.

The basketball tournament was won by Sam Culver as he defeated Roger Zapata 20-16. Other players included Robert Zapata, Ray Moyle and Lance Ramierz. Spud was played by Sam Culver, Robert Zapata, Roger Zapata, Raymond Moyle.

"Butterfingers" of the week designation was given to Raymond Moyle for the second week of competition.

At Serramonte gym, weekly Ping-Pong and carroms championships changed hands in the second week of competition. In the 13 and 14 division, Joe Nobles took top honors in both events, followed by Wayne Wynn in second and Robert Caliz taking third in carroms, while Barbara Madrieres finished second along with Richie Pult placing third in Ping-Pong.

In the 11 and 12-year-old division, John Mignosa was champ in carroms ahead of Nick Giolino and Susan Nelson in second and third, respectively.

In Ping-Pong, Nick Ciolino was tops while Jon Madrieres placed second and Susan Nelson third.

In the 15 and over bracket, Steve Daly ruled in carroms with Ron Spinetti in second and Rob Martin in third.

At the Ping-Pong tables, Pistol Pete Martin defeated all comers, followed closely in second by Varouj Badikian; while Ron Spinetti captured third. Among the others that offered competition were John Kelly, Doug Dennis, Pam Scheffler, Tom Daly, Tom Duag, Linda Rosenthal and Willie McNeil.

The Serramonte gang splashed it up at Searsville Lake and continued water wars with vigor.

Promoted from "Chicken of the Sea" to "Turkey of the Sea" was Richie Pult who put in a fine performance. Awarded their "water-wings" were Tom "The Flip" Daly and Stephen "The Cannonball" Sirianni along with Mike Nightingale, who wades better than anyone else. Trip day is every Thursday and sign-ups are taken at the gym.

Local Youngster Is Judo Champion

Special to The Post

SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N.J. — Eleven-year-old Richie Moss won a title over the weekend in the USJF National Judo Championships.

Steve Matulac of San Bruno walked away with second place in the 13-year-old lightweight division.

To qualify for the national tournament an entrant had to be one of the three top place winners in their official Black Belt Association in their home state.

O'Sullivan's Winning Habit Hard to Break

What's Going On Here?

By CHRISTOPHER STAVE
Post Sports Writer

ED O'SULLIVAN ASKS no quarter, and gives none.

That's one reason the 35-year-old Pacifican is a born champion — if such a thing exists.

Right now he's a champion race driver, and has been for several years. But if it wasn't cars, it would probably be something else.

In 1960, in his native Ireland, O'Sullivan was a national cycling champion, and had been chosen to compete in the Olympics. He did about 6,000 miles of roadwork a year, not counting mountain climbing, and labored "till it seemed it would tear your heart right out."

But then, as now, politics got in the way of athletics. O'Sullivan did not want to compete on an Irish team under a British banmer. And he was not allowed the trip to Rome.

He doesn't even like to talk about it today. "That's water under the bridge," he said flatly. "I was the top rider. I was all set to go. It was all down in black and white. Then all of a sudden I found out I wasn't going . . . that may be the biggest disappointment I've ever had.

"That put me off. I quit cycling right there. Politics doesn't belong in it. I don't think most athletes care that much about the politics, anyway."

AFTER A WHILE O'Sullivan went to England, and for a time tried motorcycle racing, but "I kept getting contact with the ground, and I didn't care for that too much."

He began racing formula cars, learning some valuable lessons and finding a perfect outlet for his competitive instincts.

O'Sullivan still employs those tactics with his Datsun 610 in Sports Car Club of America racing, and has occasionally drawm criticism from disgruntled competitors. "They say it's a gentleman's sport. Well, it may have been once, but it isn't any more, particularly where money's involved," he said. "I've made contact a few times, but it's usually with back-markers who don't look in there mirrors. I've blown people off the road three times — they weren't ready when I passed, weren't prepared for the slipstream, and they overcorrected. I never touched them."

SKILL AND COMPETITIVE spirit have made O'Sullivan a winner several times with a relatively low-budget effort. He took the Washington, D.C. regional championship in 1971, won the San Francisco championship in '74 and '75, and last Sunday regained the lead in this year's points race.

He started in fifth position in his B sedan Datsun at Sears Point and, running in the same race with much larger Camaros and Mustangs, took second overall. He wasn't satisfied with a win in his own class: he wanted to beat everybody.

"There are two kinds of drivers," he said. "There are those who race to win and those who race for fun. I race to win."

And quite often he does win. No one at the regional level can beat him when his car's right. And even in national races, where he's up against well-heeled competition (money means a lot in auto racing), he's about as fast as the front runners now.

He wanted to make a run for the national championship in Atlanta this uear, but ran into hard luck in two early races — he suffered a punctured tire on a pace lap in one, and broke a camshaft in another. Already he's planning next year's push. In the meantime, he'll try to win yet another regional championship "just to stay sharp."

BUT BEING A winner isn't easy.

"It's fun, but it's also hard work," he said. "You've got to be dedicated. You can't do it in spasms. You've got to do it from Sunday to Sunday, go all out from the word 'go.'"

He does most of his own mechanical work — it's his trade — and derives a great deal of satistaction from building the car and seeing it go as well as "professional" entries, but the driving is the thing.

open hole even when you're not sure you can make it.

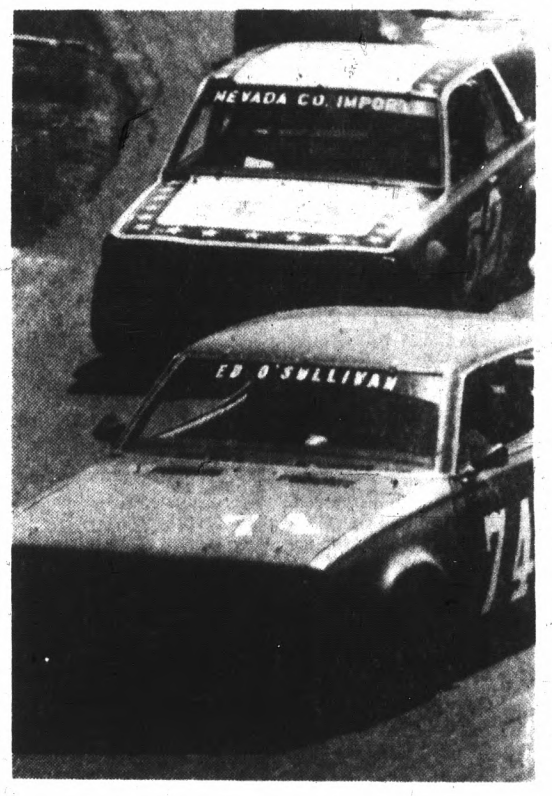

"That's the way everyone drives in Europe," he said. "But here, some people think it's overly aggressive. Still, it's what you have to do to win.

"And you have to be a strategist, ready to use the road, your competitors and any breaks that come up. You have to know what's going on ahead of you and behind you. When you're going through one turn, you're already thinking about the next one. If you're thinking about the one you're in, you've made a mistake and you're in trouble.

"You have to be consistent. A lot of guys can go out and be fast for one or two laps but then they go slower and slower. I can go as fast at the end as at the beginning. You have to have lap times no more than a second apart."

O'Sullivan is a little bit sorry that he can't modify his Datsun to enter the Goodrich Radial Challenge portion of the upcoming IMSA races at Sears Point. "That'll be a knock-down, drag-out race," he said. "Those guys go all out. They don't mind banging fenders once in a while." But the Datsun, sponsored by Douglas Automotive Engineering of San Francisco, would need more changing about than would be worthwhile for one race.

So for the time being O'Sullivan will have to be content with the business of winning a regional title, old hat though that may be, and waiting for another crack at the national level. One way or another, he's still winning.

LEADING, AS USUAL

Pacifica's Ed O'Sullivan has his Datsun 610 in front of the pack through the downhill turn four at Sears Point; most of his rivals are used to getting a receding view of his brake lights.

Swim Team Forming

The Daly City Recreation Department announces the start of a recreation swim team at the Westmoor Pool. The team is open to Daly City residents between the ages of 7-18 with advanced beginner or better skills.

Practices will be held Monday through Friday from 4:30-6:00 p.m. The initial fee is $10.50 for the entire summer.

Coach Lou Zitnik will be holding registration and team tryouts through July 23.

For further information, contact the Westmoor Pool at 992-4190 or the Recreation Office at 992-5356.

Tennis Court Open

Mayor Anthony A. Giammona in a short informal ceremony dedicated the new Reservoir 5-B Tennis Complex. The 10-court facility is now open for use by the residents of Daly City. It is located on Margate Street just off Gellert Drive in the Serramonte section of Daly City. Pictured with Mayor Giammona on the speakers' platform is Councilman Kyriakis and Recreation Commissioner Al Kane.

Rescue Commended

Daly City Police Cadet Gary Botti is commended by Chief David Hansen. The cadet recently entered a burning residence to rescue a woman he had been told was trapped inside. Fortunately, no one was inside and there were no injuries from the fire.

Seniors Reminded Of Tax Deadline

Assemblyman Louis J. Papan (D-San Mateo County) has issued a reminder to senior citizens who have not yet applied for Senior Citizen Property Tax Assistance that Aug. 31 is the final day to file for the tax refund.

The necessary forms, and help in filling them out, are available through his district office.

The Franchise Tax Board will also have a representative in Daly City on July 21 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

The location will be the Eureka Federal Savings office at 6395 Mission St., Daly City.

Anyone wishing assistance should bring with them a copy of their property tax bill, proof of age if filing for the first time, and records of all income for 1975.

Assemblyman Papan stated that his office has already assisted many seniors in filing for a refund.

But, he says, "every year many eligible seniors fail to file. Last year nearly one-quarter of those eligible missed the deadline and thus deprived themselves of a tax advantage which they rightfully deserved."

The program applies to those occupant homeowners who reached age 62 no later than Jan. 1, 1976, and whose total household income for 1975 did not exceed $10,000. The refund is a percentage of the homeowner's 1975-1976 property tax.

For more information, contact Assemblyman Papan's district office at 345-E Serramonte Plaza, Daly City, 756-6400.

Three Installed By Employe Unit

Two South San Francisco men and one from Daly City were installed recently as officers of Toll Bridges Chapter 49 of the California State Employes Association.

William A. Craib, 2410 Tipperary Ave., is chapter president, succeeding Dan M. Arteaga. Chris Koukis, 26 Tahoe Court, is treasurer. Bernie LaPedis, 126 Santa Paula Drive, Daly City, is corresponding secretary.

Craib, a CSEA member 18 years, is an associate transportation engineer with Caltrans. He had been twice before president of the chapter. Koukis also is a past president.

Installation was at a dinner meeting at Francesco's restaurant in Oakland. Glenn E. Denney, past president of the state association, installed the current officers.

Craib has served the statewide employes' organization as vice president and coordinator of various committees.

The transportation group Craib heads now is designated as CSEA Toll Bridges Chapter No. 49. Formerly it was named Bay Toll Crossings Chapter No. 49 when Caltrans was the Department of Transportation.

In South San Francisco, Craib served two years as a commissioner of Parks and Recreation. He is a director of the Westborough County Water District for the past 11 years, serving as president for three years.

He is president of the South San Francisco Youth Baseball Managers Association. Other memberships include the California Parks and Recreation Society, National Recreation and Park Association and the California Association of Parks and Recreation.

Promoted

Christopher White, son of Mrs. Ikuko White of 455 Westmoor Ave. of Daly City, has been promoted to airman first class in the U.S. Air Force.

Airman White, an aircraft mechanic, is assigned at Grand Forks AFB, N.D., for duty with a unit of the Strategic Air Command.

The airman is a 1974 graduate of Westmoor High School. His father, retired Air Force Chief Master Sergeant Milton White, resides at 301 G St. S.W., Washington, D.C.

Arrived

U.S. Air Force Staff Sgt. Robert J. Simonoff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander I. Simonoff of 39 E. Cavour St., Daly City, has arrived for duty at Fairchild AFB, Wash.

Sgt. Simonoff, an avionic inertial radar specialist with a unit of the Strategic Air Command, previously served at Kadena AB, Okinawa.

The sergeant has attended the University of California at Berkeley and the College of San Mateo.

Samuel Chandler

Hero: "One who is brave, valiant, illustrious; distinguished by valor or fortitude."

—Webster

Look no further for heroes than to the founding fathers of San Francisco:

Juan Bautista De Anza
Jose Joaquin Moraga
Father Junipero Serra
Father Francisco Palou

The list grows longer as the story unfolds.

In the age of conquistadors these men proved to be the greatest of their breed. While others found kingdoms to conquer and gold to seize from its owners, these heroes subdued the deserts of the Southwest and explored overland routes to bring the culture of Europe to the lovely land of California.

With his own funds De Anza engaged two priests, 20 soldiers and a dozen other men and outfitted them with horses and supplies. Just as he was ready to start across the deserts that surround the Gila River of New Mexico, his camp was raided by the Apache Indians who drove off some of the horses and destroyed much of the food.

But De Anza, as George Wharton James has written, "did not allow danger to deter him from his purposes; it made him cautious and careful."

The De Anza trail led through the Gila desert to the Colorado River, then down its course through the burning lands of Arizona to present day California. From Mission San Gabriel, De Anza and six ragged men moved up the California coast to the Spanish outpost at Monterey.

His trail has been called the "road of the devil," but Juan Bautista de Anza saw in the country he traversed, "the promise of the land" as Junipero Serra and Gaspar Portola had seen it earlier. Therefore, for a second journey, he joined with Father Serra and Father Palou to assemble a group of settlers who were chosen to make a settlement on the Bay of San Francisco.

DE ANZA'S STORY is told by Richard F. Pourade in "Anza Conquers the Desert" and in Jonreed Lauritzen's novel of both De Anza and Father Serra, "The Cross and the Sword."

Lt. Jose Joaquin Moraga was a member of the De Anza-Serra expedition to found a settlement on the San Francisco Bay. With Father Palou, he led the colonists that De Anza and Father Serra had assembled to a grassy spot that is now the Mission Dolores.

On June 29, 1776, they set up a temporary chapel and with a solemn ceremony they started the City by the Golden Gate. To mark the occasion Lieutenant Moraga waved his sword and ordered the soldier to fie their guns.

Unfortunately, the City of San Francisco was slow to honor brave Moraga. Although he commanded the Presidio, he was buried in a grave the remained unmarked for one hundred thirty-three years. Now his grave in the cemetery of the Mission Dolores is marked.

To this day, however, Moraga's work is noted in an artible by Bernice Scharlach that is found in the July issue of San Francisco.

LIKEWISE, FATHER PALOU is largely forgotten while Father Serra's fame grew greater. Nevertheless he headed the Mission Dolores for ten years before moving reluctantly to accept an appointment as President of the College of San Fernando in Mexico.

But Fahter Palou had more going for him to perpetuate his memory than Lieutenant Moraga. He was a writer. From his pen came the first and primary biography of Father Serra. And further from him came accounts of the various expeditions of the Spanish people into California.

His books show that Fahter Palou was as bnrave and valiant as Father Serra, Lieutenant Moraga, and Captain De Anza, San Francisco's first heroes.

In Memory of Service

Ray Blair, president of Happy Club Senior Citizens, Eleanor Doyle and Geraldine Vickers admire a plaque that was recently installed at the clubhouse in Daly City in memory of former councilman Sanford Vickers, who died last year. He was a councilman from 1954 and 58. The plaque was given in his memory by friends and neighbors in honor of his long service to his community.

Draft Horse Show at Fair

History and the pride of California agriculturalists will be combined during the August 20-September 7 State Fair at Cal-Expo in Sacramento when the massive draft horses take the Rodeo Arena to exhibit their strength and endurance in special events scheduled for September 3-6.

This year, the Draft and Light Horse Show is dedicated to Mr. and Mrs. Ed Janeway of Santa Ynez, in a salute to their continuation of the breeding traditions that kept the great English Shires the foundation stock for breeders throughout the Northwest.

An integral part of the development of California agriculture, draft horses from ranches throughout the state will compete in pulling weights of more than two tons, and will be driven in teams of four, six-in-hand, tandem, and in singles. Standing 19 hands high and often weighing better than 3,200 pounds, these descendants of the breed that broke California's land to the plough will be vying from some $13,000 in premiums offered by the Dair.

A Master Calendar For Arts

The San Mateo County Arts Council has announced a new service in San Mateo County.

A master cultural events calendar will be maintained by the Arts Council so scheduling conflicts between the many arts events and performances in the County can be minimized.

All cultural organizations are invited to participate. The procedure for registering an event is to write to the Arts Council, 141 Borel Ave., San Mateo, 94402, for a form on which to list the name of the event, location, date, and description of activity and sponsoring organization.

The information to go into the master calendar must be received by the Arts Council no later than six weeks prior to an event.

This project was decided upon after the last breakaway conference on the arts held in May at the College of Notre Dame. The gathering of artists and organizations from throughout the County asked for such a listing to be begun and maintained throughout the year by the Arts Council.

The council's goal in offering this service is to make it possible for the public to enjoy more exhibits and performances without conflicts caused by overlapping scheduling of cultural events.

Lowell Reunion

Lowell High School, San Francisco, classes of June and December, 1936, will hold their 40th reunion November 12 at the Hilton Inn, San Francisco International Airport.

North Peninsula regional chairman Joe Murray asks that graduates who have not been contacted to call him at 343-9095, or to write reunion chairman Jerry Cohen, 255 Castenada Drive, Millbrae, 94030, for details of reunion plans and reservations.

Orchid Talk Set

The manager of the foreign and domestic flower shipping department of Rod McLellan's "Acres of Orchids" will speak at the July meeting of the Peninsula Orchid Society.

Mrs. Bertie DeMartini, who has been with the McLellan organization 32 years, will talk on "Points Used in Determining a Certificate of Botanical Merit."

A veteran American Orchid Society judge and a past president of the Peninsula Orchid Society, Mrs. DeMartini has had 25 years of experience as a hybridizer and seedling grower.

The meeting will be held at the Menlo Park Recreation Center, Alma and Mielke Streets in Menlo Park, 8 p.m. on July 23.

Pacifica to Rezone City Site

By JANET PARKER

Pacifica's plans to build a new corporation yard — a sore spot among some residents of the Sharp Park area of the city — cleared another hurdle last week.

The Planning Commission voted unanimously to rezone the proposed site on Sharp Park Elementary School property and to amend the city's general plan to allow for construction.

The city has been facing the need for a new corporation yard for several years.

The present yard, which houses city vehicles, is at the sewage treatment plant site. However, the city plans to expand the plant to secondary treatment this year and the present corporation yard will be eliminated.

The council studied several possible sites in 1974 and chose the Sharp Park school for financial reasons.

The council appropriated $100,000 in revenue sharing for the yard.

But members of the Sharp Park Improvement Council made it clear Tuesday night they will continue to fight construction of the facility in their neighborhood.

They say the city acted too hastily in designating the Sharp Park property and failed to study other alternatives closely.

Resident John Curtis told the commission that turning the site at the end of Palmetto into a city corporation yard is in conflict with the residential atmosphere of that neighborhood.

He said that the costs of building the facility in the Sharp Park area greatly increases the costs since the city must make special efforts to disguise its use and make it palatable to the Coastal Zone Conservation Commission.

The city, he said, will have to spend at least $200,000 extra to make the structure look good in a bad place.

"The city should give thorough consideration to the people of this city who deserve the best facility possible at the cheapest price," Curtis said.

One other site originally considered in the Vallemar area, he said, would be much more appropriate since it is not in a residential area.

At one point, Commissioner Brad Pringle accused Curtis of nitpicking and objected to his continued complaints.

"It's been the attitude of this city all along that if neighbors don't like it, so what," Curtis said.

"It's never been recognized that this is a neighborhood and not just a piece of real estate," he added.

Another Sharp Park resident, Kay Grottom, said the city has a history of poor planning and shouldn't continue those errors with the corporation yard.

She said Sharp Park residents are concerned that the city's earlier approval of a so-called "mini-warehouse" in Sharp Park is being used to justify locating the corporation yard there, too.

Community Development Director Les Clark said the reason the council originally adopted the Sharp Park site among the many alternatives in a consultant's report was economics.

Although the property has been appraised for more than the council had expected, the financial arrangement with the Laguna Salada School District for the purchase of the property is considered more attractive.

Clark said the plans call for constructing an enclosure for some of the equipment — to protect it from the salt air and to keep it from public view.

Other possible sites were abandoned, he said, because access to Highway One — the main route through the city — was inadequate for emergency situations.

Although some commissioners said they were apprehensive about the site, they voted in its favor.

Pacifica Treatment Plant in Hot Water

By JANET PARKER

Pacifica's 4-year-old sewage treatment plant is in violation of several state and federal water discharge laws, according to California Water Quality Control Board officials.

City officials were notified recently by letter that the board will hold a public hearing Aug. 17 in Oakland to hear testimony by the city staff concerning the alleged treatment plant violations.

Board spokesman Bill Gingrich said the WQC Board will consider, among other things, a possible cease and desist order prohibiting additional hook-ups to the city's sewer system.

Such an order would prevent the city from issuing any building permits until the violations are eliminated.

Gingrich said that if the city eventually were found in violation of such a cease and desist order, the state Attorney Genera's office could fine the city as much as $10,000.

He said the board realizes Pacifica has been having serious problems with its plant, particularly with odor emissions.

"We feel that this warrants going to the board," Gingrich said. "It's a serious enough and critical enough problem."

One of the violations listed by the board is the odor nuisance.

Residents of Sharp Park — the neighborhood in which the plant is located — have been complaining to the city for more than a year that odors coming from the plant are unbearable.

Some have said the odor problem is preventing them from selling their homes for what they are worth and others have said it is damaging to their health.

City officials have been trying to find the cause of that odor.

City Manager Don Weidner said the city believes illegal dumping of materials caused one of the two plant digesters to malfunction and the mechanism still is not operating properly.

As a result, the malfunctioning digester is not processing as it should and the odor problem has not decreased.

Another problem cited by board officials is the amount of chlorine being left in the water as it is discharged into the ocean, Gingrich said. The chlorine can be toxic to fish, he said.

The WQC also charges the city is behind schedule in construction of secondary treatment plant and dechlorination facilities.

Weidner said the notice of violations is an overreaction.

He said the WQC officials talked to the city about the odor problem after numerous complaints by Sharp Park residents were presented to the state agency.

The WQC staff, Weidner added, suggested the city spend $6,000 or $7,000 for temporary odor control equipment.

Pacifica plans to convert its primary treatment plant into a more advanced secondary treatment system this year and the new addition will include permanent odor control facilities.

"We indicated to the water quality staff that we did not believe we could go to the City Council with any success for such an appropriation under the city's current fiscal situation," Weidner said.

So, the city staff asked the WQC officials to make a request that would be more impressive.

"We asked them to give us additional justification," Weidner said.

The notice of violations appears to be in response to that request, although the city did not expect anything quite so severe, he pointed out.

"We were hoping to accomplish this without making a major Supreme Court issue out of it," he said.

Weidner said the city is presently seeking bids for the secondary plant and odor facilities. However, construction probably will not begin until the fall at the earliest and the facilities won't be completed for at least a year.

The manager said the city is asking the WQC to wait until the permanent facilities are constructed.

However, WQC engineer Harold Singer said the city would have received notice of the violations even if there were not an odor problem.

Singer said that at the same time the odor problems were brought to the attention of WQC staff, other possible violations were being investigated.

The city will have to determine the cost, if any, of eliminating violations other than odor.

The WQC staff, Singer said, canvassed the Sharp Park neighborhood concerning the odor problem.

Weidner said the city does not dispute that there is an odor problem but is simply asking the WQC to hold off for the permanent facilities. Most of the other violations, he said, will be rectified in the secondary treatment facility.

"It's a sweeping broadside kind of procedure they are using on us that is not entirely necessary," he said.

30,000 Acres Now In Open Space Zone

Some 30,000 acres of open space lands in San Mateo County, including 23,000 acres of the San Francisco watershed, were placed in Resource Management (RM) zoning Thursday by the County Board of Supervisors.

The action placing the land in the restrictive zoning was taken to conform with state law requiring counties to have an open space zoning ordinance to complement goals and policies of the conservation and open space element of the General Plan.

RM zoning restricts development to anywhere from one dwelling unit per five acres to one dwelling unit per 40 acres, depending on such factors as terrain, stability of soil, availability of water and accessibility.

During Thursday's hearing, Randel E. Ryan Jr., submitted a petition on behalf of the Highlands Community Association opposing any new development in the Crystal Springs Canyon adjacent to the Highlands area west of San Mateo. The petition expressed environmental, water and sewage concerns.

However, the board decided to withhold 12 acres of property along Polhemus Road near Ticonderoga Road from rezoning because of its proximity to commercial and apartment developments.

The request for the deletion was made by Robert Levy, representing the White and Claussen building firm.

County Planning Director Donald A. Woolfe agreed that the 12 acres should go back to the Planning Commission for a feasibility study concerning possible development.

One of the open space areas placed in RM zoning was the 1,250-acre proposed San Bruno Mountain site the county is in the process of acquiring through eminent domain proceedings as a regional park.

The board subsequently postponed rezoning of the San Bruno Mountain Westbay lands until it can meet with representatives of the District Attorney's Office and the Planning Department to discuss possible ramifications of inverse condemnation.

Also continued to the July 27 session was action on RM zoning for a strip paralleling the west side of the Half Moon Bay Airport. The planning staff had recommended RM zoning, but the Planning Commission recommended that the property remain in its present manufacturing zoning.

It was stipulated that the RM zoning will not be a factor in determining the value of the land, which will be acquired on the basis of prior light manufacturing and agricultural zoning.

Likewise, a portion of a large area south of Portola Valley was withheld until July 27. Paul Hupf, an attorney representing property owners, contended that to place the nearly-level area adjacent to Skyline Boulevard in RM zoning would be "confiscatory."

At the request of family members, the 1,200-acre Phegler property adjacent to Huddart Park in Woodside was withheld from rezoning pending further study.

Rezoning of the Hassler Health Home property was continued to Oct. 26 at the request of Wallace Workman, director of property for the city of San Francisco.

Frisbee Contest

Talented young tossers of the frisbee, that popular flying disc seen constantly throughout the world, will shortly have a chance to do their thing as the 6th Annual Junior Frisbee Championship begins locally on all Daly City playgrounds the week of July 19-23 for boys and girls through age 15.

Playground winners in each division will compete in citywide toss-offs July 23 at 3 p.m. at Westmoor Park.

Boys and girls will compete initially in two age groups, 11 and under and 12 through 15. Both boys and girls champs in the citywide contest will be eligible to compete in the Northern California Regional Junior Frisbee finals held in Richmond on July 31.

Competition, sanctioned by the International Frisbee Association, is comprised of an assortment of frisbee throws including backhand, sidearm, underhand, skip flights, and distance flights. Behind-the-back and between-the-legs novelty catches are also scheduled events.

All interested youngsters should contact their local playground leader for instruction and details and times of local contests.

Hilda Conceptcion Mrs. Pat Palazzolo

Honeymooning in Mendocine before leaving to attend the Summer Olympics in Montreal are Mr. and Mrs. Pat Palazzolo who exchanged vows Saturday afternoon at St. Matthew's Catholic Church.

The bride is the former Hilda Concepcion, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benito Concepcion of San Mateo who hosted a reception at the Sunnyvale Community Center after the 1 o'clock ceremony.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sebastian Palazzolo, who traveled from their home in Granada Hills for the wedding.

Hilda, who was escorted to the altar by her father, asked her sister, Valerie Concepcion of San Jose, to be her honor attendant. Bridesmaids included Mary Ann Palazzolo of Granada Hills, sister of the bridegroom, and Carolyn Yee of San Jose. Mindy Cabaluna of San Mateo and Margarita Posch of Daly City.

Pat asked his brother Mike Palazzolo of Granada Hills, to be his best man. His new brother-in-law, Ed Concepcion of Daly City, shared ushering duties with Tom Cook of Puyallup, Wash. Rich Karakawa of Costa Mesa and Bob Hertan of Oakland.

The new Mrs. Palazzolo is also the sister of Rey and Roger Concepcion of San Mateo. She and her husband were graduated from San Jose State and he is employed as a probation officer in Solano County.

Pat has four other brothers: Len, John, Jim and Robert Palazzolo, all of Granada Hills.

The newlyweds will be making their first home in Oakland.

Signing of School Pact OKd

A judge has ruled that County Superintendent of Schools J. Russell Kent has the legal authority to enter a contract for purchase of the Loma Mar property for an outdoor education facility.

The ruling was rendered by Superior Court Judge Melvin E. Cohn in Redwood City. It supports the drive by Kent to purchase the land for a possible $4.1 million facility.

Six weeks ago, Judge Cohn ruled that the County Board of Education lacked the jurisdiction to purchase the 274 acres.

As a result, Kent's name was substituted in the contract with the property owners as the purchaser of the property.

The plaintiffs, the South Coastside Committee and Earl Crockett of Loma Mar, filed a second suit claiming that Kent also lacked the authority.

But Judge Cohn found otherwise.

"It should be pointed out that the sole issue is . . . whether the county superintendent of schools has the authority to purchase raw land for use of outdoor education," Judge Cohn asserted. "Whether it is wise to make such a purchase is not in the jurisdiction of the court, nor is how much money may be spent in future improvements, nor what type of future improvements may be made.

"These are executive and legislative decisions to be made in the future, and, if legally made, are not in the province of the courts."

Judge Cohn further stated: "It seems clear to the court that since only purchase of the raw land is involved, the arguments as to environmental impact reports, master plans, and building codes are irrelevant to this proceeding."

The project has been attacked by several agencies, including the past three grand juries, the county supervisors, and some cities and school districts.

Among the complaints have been the purported effects a project would have on the Pescadero water supply.

Promoted

Danilo T. Coronel, son of Mrs. William V. Fenton of 220 Lake Merced Blvd. No. 5, Westlake, Daly City, has been promoted to airman first class in the U.S. Air Force.

Airman Coronel, an inventory management specialist, is assigned at Carswell AFB, Tex., with a unit of the Strategic Air Command.

$32 Million OK in Mateo

After a perfunctory public hearing in which there was no comment from the audience, the San Mateo City Council continued action on the city's $32 million budget and capital improvement program last week.

It scheduled a daylong budget session for Saturday starting at 9:30 a.m.

At that time it will meet with spokesmen for the San Mateo County Safety Council, which is seeking to restore $1,500 stricken from the budget.

Ten Ways to Save Water

Ten ways to reduce water use and reduce monthly water bills have been listed by Barney Tumey, district manager of the California Water Service Co. in San Mateo.

He said, however, that, despite this year's record drought, the company has been able to maintain a full water supply to all customers.

The ways to reduce water use:

- Avoid overwatering plants and lawns, eliminating water runoff into street gutters.
- Water lawns and gardens in early mornings and evenings to avoid loss from evaporation. Watering should be avoided during high winds which blow water away.
- Sweep driveways and sidewalks during garden cleanups and avoid watering paved areas.
- Wash cars in sections, using a bucket of water.
- Avoid faucet drips, the slowest of which can result in the loss of as much as 15 gallons of water a day.
- Do not use toilets for trash disposal.
- Spend an extra five minutes in the shower instead of tub bathing.
- Put a full load of dishes into dishwashers.
- Do the same with clotheswashers.
- Avoid running water continuously while shaving, brushing teeth, peeling vegetables, or washing dishes.

Increase Ratified

An agreement granting 383 classified employes of the San Mateo County Schools Office a 5.75 per cent salary increase for 1976-77 has been ratified by the County Board of Education.

The agreement also calls for the schools office to pay up to $8.66 a month per employe for health and dental insurance.

County Schools Superintendent Dr. J. Russell Kent said the new salary-benefit agreement will add $201,731 to the classified salary cost of $2.9 million and will amount to about three-fourths of a cent on the property tax rate.

Negotiations still are in progress with certificated employes for a new salary and benefit agreement.

SSF Scavengers Seek Rate Increase

The South San Francisco Scavenger Co. is seeking a rate increase and a variety of alterations in its service from the City Council.

Company Vice-President George Stagnaro has requested a meeting with the council to discuss changes in the company's franchise agreement.

The proposed rate increase request ranges from 30 per cent to 35 per cent for services provided by the company to residential industrial and commercial areas of the city.

The last rate increase was in January 1974.

"Since that time, the company has experienced cost increases far beyond what any reasonable person could have expected," Stagnaro said.

Stagnaro said cost increases for his company have been shown in just about every department from postal rates to employe's salaries.

The company, he said, is hoping for a rate increase by Jan. 1.

Stagnaro has proposed two alternatives for the council and city staff to consider.

In the first the scavenger company proposes an increase in all customer services rates.

For example, the charge to single family dwellings and duplexes for pick-up of 30 gallon cans — one of the most frequent services — would increase from $2.70 to $3.50 a month.

Similar increases are proposed in all other service rates.

In addition, the company is seeking an increase in the charge for grass removal after city crews clip lawns. Stagnaro said the service costs the company $100,000 a year although the city presently is paying $28,800 a year.

"This loss must be recovered either by additional payments by the city, absorbed by the regular customers or a change in the service provided," Stagnaro said.

Also requested is a provision for an annual rate increase of 5 per cent to provide interim financial relief for the company instead of the present system of fixed rates for three year periods.

The scavenger company also seeks the right to charge for cleaning, painting and repairs to containers and debris boxes.

Finally, the company proposes a special rate of $2.50 a month for senior citizens who use a 20-gallon can every week.

In the second alternative, the scavengers propose mandatory service to all South San Francisco residents.

Stagnaro said this would add 800 customers to the company's route and add approximately $33,600 in revenue for the company.

It further proposes that all customers be required to place refuse containers at the curb side, at a cost savings for the company of $40,000.

Along with a revamp of apartment billing and waiver of a franchise fee increase of $5,000, the company would save $83,600 from this second alternative.

Stagnaro said the company is making an 8.9 per cent profit under the current rate system.

Acting City Manager Frank Addiego said the council probably will study the scavenger company proposal at its second meeting in August.

Rate Boost Asked

Western Cable Television Co. in South San Francisco is seeking a rate increase from the City Council.

Company president Ernest Nelligan has written a letter to the councilmen requesting a rate increase study as soon as possible.

Nelligan said cost-of-living increases are affecting the cable company just as most other businesses are being affected.

He is asking that a rate increase for the city's subscribers be implemented by Nov. 1.

The company has been operating in South San Francisco nine years.

Monthly subscribpion rates began at $4. After a rate revision study in 1971 the charge was raised to $5.25, where it presently stands.

Nelligan said the letter to the council does not request a specific rate increase, only that possible increases be studied and specifics be determined later.

The president also said the company has considered offering a pay television system that would provide recent full-length feature movies.

Nelligan said there are two possible methods by which subscribers would pay for the service.

Residents interested in seeing movies might pay an additional monthly service charge which runs around $10 a month in cities where the service is offered.

Another method, he said, is for the company to raise the rates of all subscribers. A cable company in San Jose uses the latter method by boosting the monthly subscription rate $2.

However, Nelligan said there are several technical problems in providing the service in South San Francisco and it does not appear it will be available this year, although it is a possibility for 1977.

Child Care Ruling

A federal judge has ruled that the San Mateo Community College District is not compelled to institute child care programs for students attending its schools.

U.S. District Judge Spencer Williams made the ruling Wednesday in San Francisco.

The suit had been brought by Mrs. Sue DeLaCruz of San Mateo and five other women seeking an injunction to enjoin the college district board of trustees from adopting a policy against child care centers on campuses, to force the board to apply for funds for care centers and to force the board to supply child care facilities for children of students.

The suit contended the district's policy is unconstitutional in that it discriminates on the basis of sex and that the lack of child care denies women with children an educational opportunity.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Thomas F. Casey III, who defended the college board, contended the plaintiffs didn't have a basis for suit because they either were attending college or are in high school.

Judge Williams said in his decision that he doesn't feel Congress or the Constitution requires educational institutions to provide child care programs.

Casey said he expects the decision will be appealed by the Legal Aid Society, which represented the plaintiffs.

Vandals Hit School

Vandals broke into Lipman Intermediate School in Brisbane Friday night and did extensive damage to a classroom.

Brisbane police said the vandals, probably juveniles, slipped open the lock of the door to room 3 at 7:30 p.m.

Apparently the vandals fled when one of them pulled a fire alarm a few minutes later.

Father-Son Law
Reaction to Ford Ruling

The public — including President Ford — has overreacted to a ruling on father-son and mother-daughter activities in the public schools, according to an Office of Civil Rights spokesman.

OCR Specialist Charles Love in San Francisco said the ruling was not intended to eliminate such events in the nation's public school system.

"Everyone has caught on to the rather dramatic prohibition of fathers and sons attending banquets or other activities," Love said. "The effect of the ruling has been rather exaggerated."

It was announced this week that the OCR had ruled that public schools may no longer sponsor father-son, and mother-daughter events because they violate laws concerning sex discrimination.

The ruling angered President Ford who immediately demanded a reconsideration of it.

Love said the San Francisco office — from which the ruling concerning an Arizona school district originated — has not received official word that it should be cancelled.

However, he said that when the chief executive officer of the country asks for another interpretation, there's little room for argument.

Love said the OCR made that ruling June 25 because it was believed that activities divided by sex might exclude students who have only one parent.

The new interpretation, Love said, probably will be made by the General Counsel for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The ruling was an extension of the Title IX statute passed by Congress in 1972. HEW drafted regulations last year to implement the statute, which aims at ending sex discrimination in the public school system.

Local school superintendents — most of whom are currently involved in implementing Title IX guidelines in their schools districts — had mixed reaction to the ruling.

Some sided with President Ford that the ruling carries Title IX a bit too far.

Others said it was a necessary step in carrying out sexual equality in education.

Floyd Gonella, Jefferson Union High School District superintendent, said such rulings can become counter-productive.

"It's getting to the point of ridiculousness," Gonella said.

"You begin to wonder where Mothers Day and Fathers Day stand in all this," he added.

He said no student is prohibited from attending any activity in JUHSD because of sex. Athletic banquets and other events involving parents may be attended by both boys and girls, he said.

"I'm not conerned about what we call them," he said. "I'm concerned that the function is maintained. As long as we continue to provide the function, I feel it is all right."

San Bruno Park School District Associate Supt., Bob Rottman said he is not opposed to Title IX regulations or their intent.

However, he said there is some questions where the line must be drawn.

"There are quite possibly some legitimate differences in activities so long as the people themselves are not adversely affected or discriminated against," he said.

Several superintendents said that they already are taking steps to see that scholarships are no longer awarded from community organizations to specifically boys or girls.

In fact, public schools apparently have seen the last of the "most outstanding boy" and "most outstanding girl" honors.

Laguna Salada School District Assistant Supt. Marvin Morgangi said he discussed these problems with principals in a meeting recently and many thought that the sexual discrimination decisions are going too far.

It's going to hurt non-discrimination more than help, Morgangi said.

He said the LSSD already is evaluating the scholarship award system. Boys and girls, he said, are not eliminated from attending any activity because of sex in the LSSD.

The Jefferson Elementary School District just began working on Title IX guidelines. Associate Supt. Jerry Houseman said the first thing that will be done is to examine school activities and curriculum and determine if any are sexually discriminatory.

Associate Supt., Tom Gaffney said the district has not had special events for boys or girls for years.

He said he sees such rulings regarding sexual discrimination as positive steps to assure equality.

"There is some good coming out of it," Gaffney said.

However, he added that some rulings such as the most recent one, are perhaps "overdone."

"We may be reaching a point where we are overdoing it," he said.

Suspect Arrested

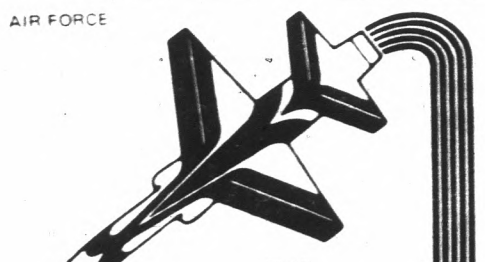

A South San Francisco suspect surprised in the act of robbing a man sitting in his vehicle at Tanforan Park Shopping Center Thursday evening, was arrested shortly afterwards.

San Bruno Police said they apprehended Ralph David Butler, 18, who had allegedly taken a small amount of cash from a man sitting in his car at about 7 p.m. Thursday.

ERRORS: No responsibility is assumed by publisher for errors in any advertisement covered by order, nor for the omission of any advertisement in whole or in part, nor for failure to comply with the placement of advertising as ordered/either as to frequency or volume, in no event shall publisher be liable for special damages or consequential damages even if it has been notified of the possibility of such damages.
Errors in published advertisements must be reported immediately, and if done, publisher will publish an appropriate correction and where publisher deems it necessary a rerun of the advertisement as corrected. If in publisher's judgment the error substantially varies the meaning of the advertisement as ordered. Such corrections will be made only as to those advertisements which are ordered for one insertion, and as to the first insertion only when ordered for more than one insertion.

If you are among the millions of people who are becoming more aware of proper nutrition ... then you may qualify for a position with one of the fastest growing retail chains in the country! General Nutrition Centers, Inc. has grown from 35 stores in 1970 to over 375 stores today! Our expansion is expected to continue at a very impressive rate well into the 1980's. We are looking for some very special people to join our most exciting company! To be successful we need people who meet the following profile:

- Knowledge or Interest in Nutrition
- Retail Sales and/or Management Experience
- High Energy Level
- Enjoys Selling
- Enjoys Helping People
- Wants Career Opportunity

If you feel the above profile pretty well describes you, then we'd really like to talk with you. We offer an excellent starting salary and an exceptional fine incentive program as well as a complete package of fringe benefits. You'll participate in our corporate profit-sharing program, [illegible] protection for retirement purposes. Last but not least, you'll receive the best training in the industry so all your efforts will be rewarded with opportunities for [illegible]

We'll be at the [illegible] to interview all applicants [illegible] between the ages of [illegible] and 55 to apply.

Man Slain in Saloon Dispute

A man wearing a necklace of bullets around his neck and a black shirt with "Bad Company" written on it shot a 28-year-old Brisbane man fatally outside a Brisbane saloon Friday night.

According to police Ricky DeWayne Bray of 34 Visitation Ave., a truck driver for a San Francisco firm, died on the operating table of Mary's Help Hospital about three hours after being shot once in the back, apparently with a .44 magnum pistol.

Coroner's investigators reported the one bullet ripped apart vital organs.

Officers reported Bray and the gunman apparently became involved in an argument over which tune should be played on the jukebox inside the Quicksilver Saloon at 107 Visitation Ave., about 11 p.m.

One man invited the other "outside," Sgt. William Morrison reported, and Bray went out first. The other man pulled a weapon and shot Bray once in the back.

Numerous witnesses watched in horror as the murderer escaped in a red sports car with a white strip down the side.

Morrison said Bray talked briefly to him before dying.

Det. Sgt. John Majks, chief of the investigation division, is in charge of the case.

Bray is survived by his wife, Sandy.

The man, who was wearing a three-quarter length leather jacket, was described as about 23 to 28 and had brown, wavy hair combed back.

Employes

file so many complaints," said Minford. "They are a restless group, and the reason for this is because they have a lack of job satisfaction."

"We need to completely rethink how we must deal with municipal fire service," the city manager added, "to provide firemen with better job satisfaction and to give taxpayers a better return on their dollar."

Agreeing with most city managers in the county, Supervisor Edward Bacciocco believes salaries paid to nonsupervisorial public employes is fair "if the norm we use for comparative work is sound."

However, he expresses some concern over what department heads and managers earn even though they are not unionized.

At the county level, department heads and managers earn between $25,000 and $52,000 per year. City managers in the county make between $24,000 and $45,000.

"The reason these employes (management) make more money is because they have a greater responsibility and it is assumed that they have superior ability," said Bacciocco.

"But I hold some dissatisfaction with the money they earn, because there is no method to measure the assumed superior ability in producing results for the public in tighter cost control and more efficient services. Therefor, the only justification for their salaries is tradition and mindless comparisons."

He continues: "Every manager and department head (in county government) recently got a 7 per cent salary increase, and there is no evidence that they did anything to earn it. We are groping blindly, because we don't have a cost analyst to second guess the bureaucracy."

Plenty of Water in Plunge

By JOHN HORGAN
Post Staff Writer

During these trying times when water is becoming more valuable than oil, we have been hearing strong recommendations to conserve this precious fluid here on the parched Peninsula.

From all sides, suggestions are pouring in: stick a plastic brick or two in your toilet tank; repair your faucets; bathe two to a tub and scrub with a friend.

Still, even with this emphasis on water priorities, no one is saying that swimming pools are in jeopardy. Suburban swimming pools are sacred in the summertime. Without them, many of us would be lost. Where else can we park the kids for up to an hour a day for lessons?

The San Mateo Union High School District, in conjunction with the American Red Cross, runs a splendid swimming program for children from San Bruno to San Mateo.

The kids can get 10 lessons for $6. It may be the best bargain this side of your next garage sale.

The program has three two-week sessions. Your child can take part in as many sessions as you wish at $6 per two-week period. Some of us make certain that junior has six straight weeks of lessons, anything to get him into the pool.

The director of the program, Duke Campagna, estimates that he has personally taught or overseen as many as 15,000 youngsters in his 25 years with the program.

"It's worth a whole program to save just one life," offers Duke. "We get all kinds of kids. My own daughter learned how to swim through the program. For the first three days, she did nothing but cry. But she learned. Now she's a swimming instructor in Santa Rosa."

Duke recalls that there was one child who refused to get his face wet at all.

"His mother kept bringing him, though. She brought that child to the pool 27 times before he would put his face in the water. But he finally did."

At the height of the program's popularity some years ago, 10,000 children signed up during one summer alone. This year, as the numbers of kids decline and as summer school intrudes more and more, the total figure is down. By the end of July, something like 2,000 children will have taken lessons this year. And, as in years past, many of those are repeaters.

Although the numbers are indeed down, there has been no lessening of enthusiasm among those who do participate in the program.

The high school district uses four of its swimming pools this year and the scene at all of them is pretty much the same: kids flailing about in the water while their parents wait dutifully on the sidelines.

It is apparently the suburban parent's lot to sit while junior frolics.

"I spend most of the summer driving my kids to and from summer school, baseball games, tennis lessons, swimming lessons, you name it," says one mother. Her station wagon racks up more summer miles than the busiest Teamster.

She adds that her only free time is that three-hour period when the kids are in summer school.

Swimming lessons require her presence.

That means she can watch the daily orgy of aquatic gymnastics which takes place in front of her in the Burlingame High School pool.

The other day, one group of swimmers was given the opportunity to try the diving board for the first time this summer.

Every manner of dive, leap, bellyflop and just plain survival fall was exhibited. Parents and instructors cringed at the sight.

One kid emerged from the deep after an especially bizarre effort and announced, "That one hurt my face." Degree of difficulty: undetermined.

Children are divided into groups according to skill in the water: beginners, advanced beginners, intermediates, swimmers, etc.

There used to be more colorful designations for them: sand fleas, super sand fleas, dunkers, etc. Those are now passe.

I miss those labels. I remember that, as a kid, I was a perpetual crustacean. I hung onto the side of the pool a lot.

I had to be bribed to jump into the water. I was never a threat to Mark Spitz.

Nobody could ever convince me that water wasn't inherently dangerous to your health. Just ask W.C. Fields.

Still, in all his years with the swimming program here, Campagna says he has never lost a patient.

"Nobody has ever drowned," he offers.

My face still hurts just thinking about all this.

Santa Cruz Teener Trip Is Scheduled

The Daly City Recreation Department is sponsoring a trip to Santa Cruz Beach and boardwalk for high school teens July 17.

Buses will leave Daly City at approximately 10 a.m. from Bayshore School, War Memorial Community Center, Westmoor Park and Gellert Park. Return time is 8 p.m.

The cost is $3.50 and includes transportation and insurance. Permission slips may be obtained from any Daly City Playground or Park. Deadline for sign-ups is 5 p.m. July 15.

Death Said To Be Suicide

A South San Francisco man died Wednesday night at Kaiser Hospital from an apparent self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head.

Sares Wati Prasad, 40, of 2301 Wexford Ave., reportedly shot himself at about 8 a.m. Wednesday morning with a .38-caliber revolver, police said.
